INTRODUCTION

Minifigures bring the LEGO Star Wars galaxy to life—whether they are celebrated heroes like Obi-Wan Kenobi and Luke Skywalker, humble droids, or virtually identical clone troopers. They may be small figures, but they have many LEGO® elements that make them fascinating and highly collectible.

How to use this book:

The book is divided into eight Star Wars sections—Episodes I through VI, the Clone Wars, and the Expanded Universe. The minifigures are ordered according to the Star Wars property in which they first appeared or mostly featured. Tabs at the top of each page indicate every Star Wars property in which a minifigure appears (see above)*. As most Star Wars characters appear in the Expanded Universe, that tab is highlighted only if a minifigure appears in an EU set. The book distinguishes between “versions” of minifigures and “variants.” Versions are separate minifigures in their own right—so each version has its own page. Variants are the same version of a minifigure but with modifications. For example, there are ten versions of Luke Skywalker in this book; one of those is X-wing pilot Luke, and that minifigure has been released in five different variations or variants. Like Luke, some minifigures have lots of variants, though, sadly, not all of them can fit in this book. The most significant ones, however, are shown in a “star variant” picture box. Data boxes on every page detail a minifigure’s most recent set number and name, the year that set was released, the number of LEGO pieces from which the minifigure is made, any equipment or weapons it carries, and its number of variants. An alphabetical index of minifigures at the end of the book lists all the LEGO Star Wars sets in which each minifigure has ever appeared, along with its page number.

*Note that if a character has both a Clone Wars minifigure and a classic minifigure, the Clone Wars tab is highlighted only on the Clone Wars version’s page.

Maverick Jedi Master Qui-Gon Jinn has appeared in seven LEGO Star Wars sets since 1999. There are four slightly different variants of Qui-Gon, but he always appears in his Jedi robe and tunic, ready to undertake a mission for the Jedi Order. Each variant has either his unique brown hair or a brown hood, which helps him to keep a low profile.

STAR VARIANT

Qui-Gon wrong

In the Republic Cruiser (set 7665), Qui-Gon has tan legs, a hood... and the wrong head! His head is Obi-Wan Kenobi's from General Grievous Chase (set 7255). It was later replaced with the correct head.

Qui-Gon's cut

Qui-Gon's long, pulled-back hairstyle has only ever been used on his minifigure. It first appeared on his original variant (in various sets from 1999-2000) and has since been resurrected for his 2011 redesign.

Updated Jedi tunic and utility belt design is new for 2011

Jedi robes are a standard brown fabric cape

STAR VARIANT

Padawan braid

Obi-Wan Kenobi has a Padawan braid over his right shoulder in Jedi Defense I (set 7203). The variant is unique to that set, and the torso piece is not used on any other minifigures.

Jedi hood aids disguise

Young Padawan Obi-Wan Kenobi is apprentice to Jedi Master Qui-Gon Jinn, faithfully learning the ways of the Force. This version of Obi-Wan appears in four different sets and each minifigure has a slight variation. He is, however, always dressed in his Jedi apparel and is seldom without his blue lightsaber.

Jar Jar Binks

GOOFY GUNGAN

Bumbling Gungan Jar Jar Binks broke the LEGO mold as the first minifigure ever to have a unique head sculpt. He found his way into five Episode I sets in 1999–2000, and then made a comeback in the 2011 set The Battle of Naboo (7929). In 2011, Jar Jar's head-mold had printing added to it to give him a new look.

Flat eyes, painted yellow with black pupils

Mottled skin is good for camouflage

This Jar Jar has flesh-colored arms and hands, while the original has lighter tan arms and hands

Early Jar Jar

The first LEGO Jar Jar Binks has a very similar head-mold to the 2011 design except for one thing: his eye stalks are split to depict his eyes. On the 2011 design, Jar Jar's eye stalks are flat and he has painted eyes.

Amphibious ears

Jar Jar's distinct floppy ears are integrated into his head-mold and are printed with a mottled-skin pattern.

Jar Jar is an outcast from his people and lives alone in the swamps, so his clothing is dirty and ragged

Torso design is first seen on the 2011 design. The pattern continues on the back

STAR VARIANT

First Queen
The original Padmé Naberrrie minifigure has yellow flesh, a unique wide-smiled head, and slightly different printing on her torso. She comes in two sets: Anakin's Podracer (set 7131) and Mos Espa Podrace (set 7171).

Padmé's long hair is braided at the top and flows down her back

Don't tell anyone but Padmé Naberrrie is actually Queen Amidala of Naboo in disguise! She is dressed as one of her handmaidens to avoid detection on the planet Tatooine. Padmé appears in this disguise in three LEGO Star Wars sets, in two variations, but she remains an enigma in the LEGO world—she has never been seen in her royal robes as Queen of Naboo.

Two faces
One side of Padmé's face is smiling, but turn it around and the other side has a look of concern.

Padmé is simply dressed in a gray vest and blue undershirt. This unique torso pattern continues on the back

DISGUISED QUEEN OF NABOO

Young slave Anakin Skywalker may be just a boy, but he can handle a Podracer like no one else! This minifigure made his Podracing debut in 1999 and has since sped into seven sets. The 2011 variant can change from ordinary slave boy to Podracing supremo, ready to ride in his redesigned Podracer.

Anakin's Podracer (set 7131)

Look out for Anakin's Podracer swooshing through the skies! Seated in the control pod of this 1999 set is the original Anakin, with regular (not short) legs and a gray helmet. Anakin's Podracer was updated in 2011.

The variant in the Naboo Starfighter (set 7877), has hair as well as this helmet

STAR VARIANT

Short stuff

The young Anakin minifigure was one of the first to try out shorter legs. The first variant seen with them is in the 2007 set Naboo N-1 Starfighter and Vulture Droid (7660).

Rare racer

This early variant is exclusive to the 1999 set Naboo Starfighter (7141). A similar variant with a gray helmet appears in three 1999-2000 sets.

Anakin wears a simple slave tunic with a brown belt on Tatooine. His clothing can be seen on the back of his torso, too

The shorter LEGO legs do not have a moveable hip joint like regular legs

Podrace face

This side of Anakin's face has goggles and a determined look. He is ready to Podrace!

Anakin Skywalker
PODRACING SLAVE BOY

Jedi Starfighter (set 7256)

R2-D2's head piece alone appeared in two LEGO Star Wars sets: 7256 (pictured) and 7283 Ultimate Space Battle. Only R2-D2's head is visible when he is in flight mode, safely navigating his owner through space aboard a Jedi Starfighter.

STAR VARIANT

Jabba's droid

R2-D2 is set to work serving Jabba the Hutt and his low-life friends in the 2006 set Jabba's Sail Barge (set 6210). He has a serving tray with drinks between his head and body pieces.

This tricky Toydarian junk dealer is a tough minifigure to get hold of! Watto first appeared in a single set in 2001, Watto's Junkyard (set 7186), and was not seen again—until he resurfaced in 2011 with a new look. As he is constantly in flight, Watto's minifigure has a translucent stand to raise him above the dusty earth of Tatooine.

Blue Watto

The original variant of winged Watto is not one for details—he has a plain blue head and torso piece with no printing on it. Underneath that is a plain tan torso piece. This variant is rare, appearing in only one 2001 set: Watto's Junkyard (set 7186).

Narrowed, yellow-painted eyes may be considering a deal

Fast-moving wings

Sandwich boards
Watto's head, wings, and torso are all a single LEGO piece. Such pieces are known as sandwich boards. Like the wearable signs. Wookiee and Ewok minifigures also wear sandwich boards (pp.50–51; pp.142–146), as do the Gamorrean guards (p.118).

JUNKYARD DEALER

Anakin's and Sebulba's Podracers (set 7962)

Sebulba's Podracer in the Anakin's and Sebulba's Podracers set is built to intimidate. Not only is it bigger than his opponents' Podracers, but it also has a bunch of illegal weapons—some hidden—for sabotage purposes during the race.

Static Sebulba

The original Sebulba is all one LEGO piece and has no movement capabilities, making it an unusual minifigure. This variant is rare—it is exclusive to the 2001 set, Mos Espa Podrace [set 7171].

Sebulba walks on his arms. They are moveable on the 2011 redesign.

Racing cap with goggles

Sebulba's head and body are one LEGO piece, but his arms are removable

Sebulba has adapted his hind limbs to steer his Podracer

Tight leg straps wind around Sebulba's hands

Dangerous Dug Sebulba is the arch rival of Anakin Skywalker and one of the most successful Podracers on Tatooine—mostly through his ruthless rule-breaking. He made his minifigure debut in 1999 at the helm of his imposing orange Pod packed with deadly weapons, and reemerged in 2011 clad in a flashy leather race outfit.

Aldar Beedo

PODRACER PILOT

This mercenary minifigure has accepted payment for taking down his racing rival Sebulba during the Boonta Eve Classic Podrace. Can Aldar Beedo complete his task? His pretty impressive Podracer appears in the 2001 LEGO set Watto's Junkyard (set 7186) along with the latest variant of his lanky Glymphid minifigure.

Watto's Junkyard (set 7186)

The 2001 variant of Aldar Beedo is exclusively featured in Watto's Junkyard. His impressive Podracer is a Mark IV Flat-Twin Turbojet model with huge engines and afterburners. Beedo fits inside the pod.

This Podracer clearly isn't too worried about safety—he isn't wearing a flight helmet! But Beedo's original variant wears a brown helmet.

STAR VARIANT

Older Aldar

This variant of Aldar Beedo appears in the Star Wars Podracing Bucket (set 7159), in a simplified version of Beedo's Podracer. The minifigure has no unique LEGO pieces and his body is mostly made up of parts from battle droid minifigures.

The LEGO Group created Aldar Beedo's long, thin minifigure mold especially for him

One piece

Aldar Beedo is one of the few LEGO minifigures to be made from a single LEGO piece. The original variant of Beedo's Podracing rival Sebulba (p.11) is the only other single-piece minifigure in the LEGO Star Wars theme.

Mos Espa Podrace (set 7171)

Watch out for Gasgano in this 1999 LEGO set—he is one of the fastest Podracers on the track! His exclusive minifigure can reach enormous speeds in his powerful LEGO Podracer thanks to anti-turbulence vanes that move as the craft races for the finish line of the Boonta Eve Classic.

Multitasking minifigure Gasgano likes to keep his Podracing competitors at arm's length! He employs his many LEGO arms to pilot his Podracer at great speeds and takes second place in the Boonta Eve Classic. Blink and you will miss him, as the minifigure only appears in one LEGO Star Wars set.

Gasgano's arms

In Episode I, Gasgano has six arms, but his LEGO minifigure only has four! Two of Gasgano's arms work the foot pedals of his Podracer during a race and can't be seen—this may be why his minifigure has just four arms.

This light gray LEGO helmet is popular on the Podracing circuit—young Podracer Anakin Skywalker (p. 8) also wears it

Gasgano's white head with large alien eyes and a driven stare is unique to his minifigure

These arm pieces feature on many droid minifigures in LEGO Star Wars

Gasgano is the only LEGO minifigure to feature this piece. It is often part of a chain saw tool in other sets

PODRACER PILOT

Young W. Wald is a slave on Tatooine. He is a Rodian minifigure—the third of the species to appear in LEGO bricks—and wears a simple slave tunic. W. Wald first appears alongside his friend Anakin Skywalker in the 2011 set Anakin's and Sebulba's Podracers (set 7962). He doubts his friend's Podracing skills, but maybe Anakin can change his mind in the Boonta Eve Classic!

Anakin's and Sebulba's Podracers (set 7962)

W. Wald makes his only LEGO Star Wars appearance to date in this 2011 set. The Rodian minifigure cheers on his friend, Anakin Skywalker, as he prepares to Podrace in the Boonta Eve Classic!

Rodian

W. Wald is the third Rodian minifigure to appear in LEGO Star Wars sets—the first is bounty hunter Greedo (p.78).

W. Wald's Rodian head is made from the same mold as Greedo's, but the color and printing is different.

W. Wald's unique Rodian head has large, multifaceted eyes, rough green skin, and a protruding snout

Simple, hardwearing slave tunic. This torso design is unique to W. Wald's minifigure

W. Wald is a small Rodian child, so his minifigure has short, unposeable LEGO legs

Mos Espa Podrace (set 7171)

This 1999 set contains all three variants of the pit droid. Each one has a repair station with a fully-stocked tool rack and race flags in its Podracer's racing colors. It looks like Sebulba's afterburner needs some attention!

Any Podracer problems are quickly fixed by the LEGO pit droid! There are three variants of the pit droid minifigure and all are present at the Mos Espa Podrace (set 7171). Each Podracer pilot included in the set—Anakin Skywalker, Sebulba, and Gasgano—has a dedicated pit droid. The pit droid is built to make speedy repairs, so its Podracer pilot won't be left waiting for long!

STAR VARIANTS

Gasgano's droid

This pit droid is made from the same LEGO pieces as Anakin's pit droid but they are mostly white. It only appears in the 1999 set Mos Espa Podrace (set 7171).

Sebulba's droid

Sebulba is a shady character, so his pit droid is made up of dark-colored LEGO bricks! His mostly brown droid appears in Mos Espa Podrace (set 7171).

Darth Maul is the terrifying Sith apprentice of Darth Sidious. Maul wears black robes and a hooded cape as he lurks in the shadows, waiting for his chance to attack the Jedi! Maul's minifigure appears in five LEGO Star Wars sets from 1999–2011. The 2011 variant has a unique Zabrak-horned head sculpt and new face and torso patterns.

STAR VARIANT

The eyes have it

The early Maul minifigures have regular LEGO heads printed with Nightholder tattoos and yellow eyes. This 2007 variant from Sith Infiltrator (set 7463) has black pupils in the eyes and different face patterns.

The 2011 minifigure includes a new mold for Darth Maul's head. This detachable piece features the Zabrak horns that Maul usually hides under his hood

SITH APPRENTICE

An old Jedi

Yoda is over 900 years old! Although he can leap through the air during a lightsaber duel like a Jedi half his age, his minifigure also comes with a wooden walking stick in X-Wing Fighter (set 4502).

As Grand Master of the Jedi Order, Yoda is the most respected Jedi in the LEGO Star Wars galaxy—despite his small size. Although Yoda's minifigure is dressed in the traditional tan robes of a Jedi, he is easily recognizable by his short legs, unique head sculpt, and green skin color.

DATA FILE

SET: 7103 Jedi Duel
YEAR: 2002
PIECES: 3
EQUIPMENT: Lightsaber
VARIANTS: 1

Yoda's head is made of rubber instead of the ABS plastic used for most LEGO pieces

Getting a head

Yoda's unique sand-green head with large, distinctive ears was designed specifically for his 2002 minifigure. It is a different mold from the Clone Wars version of Yoda (p.158), which was first released in 2009.

Yoda's tan and brown torso looks similar to those of other Jedi, but the patterns are unique to him

Yoda's species has never been revealed

Yoda is smaller than most other Jedi, but his lightsaber is standard LEGO size

Front and back

Yoda is always on guard: His back is never turned. But his utility belt and Jedi robes pattern are printed on the back of his torso, too.

Yoda was the first LEGO minifigure to have short, unposeable legs

 JEDI GRAND MASTER

Wise Jedi Master Mace Windu appears in brown Jedi robes and a blue-gray tunic in Clone Turbo Tank (set 7261). He is the only minifigure to wield a purple lightsaber, and in the 2005 release of the set, its powerful blade lights up to make it look even more impressive. A similar Mace with a non-light-up lightsaber appears in the 2006 reissue of the set.

Clone Turbo Tank (set 7261)

Mace Windu takes part in the Battle of Kashyyyk in Clone Turbo Tank. In the 2006 reissue of the set, Mace brandishes a normal lightsaber and has removable parts.

Light-up lightsaber

The head, torso, hips, right arm, and lightsaber hilt are not removable on Light-up Lightsaber minifigures. This allows electric current to flow from a battery in the torso to an LED in the lightsaber hilt when the head button is pressed.

Reddish-brown cloth cape can't be removed

 LEGENDARY JEDI MASTER

Republic Cruiser (set 7665)

The Republic captain is in command of the Republic Cruiser Radiant VII. He runs the starship from a control panel inside its middle section and leaves the job of flying it to the Republic pilot (pictured). The Republic pilot sits in the cockpit, which has room for just one minifigure.

Light flesh head with standard grin pattern

This blue crew uniform is unique to the Republic captain and pilot of the Republic Cruiser

Silver belt buckle

Dark blue hips and legs

Republic Pilot

The Republic pilot is exactly the same minifigure as the Republic captain but he has a blue hat instead of hair.

Maoi Madakor?

The Republic captain minifigure may be the female captain of Radiant VII Maoi Madakor, as seen in Episode I —although it is not named as her by the LEGO Group. The Republic pilot may be her co-pilot Antidar Williams.

CRUISER COMMANDER

Working away behind the scenes on the Republic Cruiser (set 7665) is R2-R7. If you blink you might miss him, as this green astromech droid has only ever been seen in one LEGO set. He has a docking station aboard the starship from which he provides indispensable in-flight backup for the Republic captain and pilot minifigures.

Republic Cruiser (set 7665)

The dependable R2-R7 is exclusive to this one 2007 set. The astromech droid has a docking station in the command center within the middle interior of the ship. He sits alongside the Republic captain, providing in-flight support.

Green Gungan

This was the first variant into battle in LEGO Star Wars. He is exclusive to the 2000 set Gungan Patrol (set 7115). His plain head is the same as that seen on the first Jar Jar Binks (p. 6), and his uniform is green instead of brown.

This head-mold is the same as that on the Jar Jar Binks minifigure (p. 6), with different printing

Combat eye mask

The Gungans are a peaceful people, but when Naboo is deluged by the Trade Federation's droid army, they are forced to wage war to protect it. The Gungan soldier has battled in two LEGO Star Wars sets, and due to a 2011 redesign, the minifigures in each set are different.

Battle Droid

SEPARATIST FOOT SOLDIER

The battle droid minifigure has been released in vast numbers in the LEGO Star Wars galaxy, appearing in 27 LEGO sets to date. The Separatist soldier relies on quantity, not skill, to defeat its enemy: It cannot think independently and its firing accuracy is poor—partly because the minifigure could not hold a blaster correctly until 2007!

Armed arm

Two variants of the battle droid minifigure can't hold a blaster vertically. However, from 2007 sets onward, the battle droid has had one straight, or turned, arm so the minifigure can hold a gun correctly.

As with normal LEGO minifigures, the battle droid is only articulated at the shoulder, but his two arms are not identical

This LEGO head piece was specially created for the battle droid minifigure

STAR VARIANTS

Geonosian

This variant of the battle droid minifigure appears in Geonosian Fighter [set 4478]. It is sand-red instead of tan in color because it was produced on the planet of Geonosia.

Backpack

Two 1999–2000 LEGO sets have included this battle droid with a backpack: Naboo Swamp [set 7121] and the Star Wars #6 Battle Droid Minifigure Pack [set 3343].

Regular infantry battle droids have plain tan torsos, but command officers have colored torsos to denote rank

These droids are chosen for certain roles to increase the army's efficiency. They are found in a select few LEGO sets, where their specific skills are required.

Battle colors

Specialist battle droids have had varying amounts of color on their torsos since their first release. The earliest variants have mostly tan torsos with small patches of color, and other variants have full-color torsos.

Naboo Starfighter (set 7877)

The latest variant of the Naboo fighter pilot appears in this 2011 set. The minifigure can pilot a fast and agile N-1 starfighter—if young Anakin Skywalker's minifigure hasn't already taken off in it!

Unique torso features a safety harness, flying jacket and undershirt, and a red overcoat

Sith Infiltrator (set 7961)

Captain Panaka's minifigure is exclusive to this 2011 set. Deadly Sith apprentice Darth Maul is in pursuit of Captain Panaka and his charge, Queen Padmé Amidala, in his Sith Infiltrator. Can the minifigures escape Maul?

The Naboo security officer's torso piece is unique to him. It features resilient armor plates and a silver-buckled belt

Jedi Duel
(set 7103)

Crafty Count Dooku has only ever appeared in this 2002 LEGO set, and he is attempting to make a quick getaway! Dooku has an open-cockpit speeder bike to flee on, but he is forced to duel with Jedi Master Yoda first.

Curved

Count Dooku wields a unique lightsaber with a curved metallic hilt. The piece is exclusive to Count Dooku and it also appears with Dooku's 2009 Clone Wars minifigure in Count Dooku's Solar Sailer (set 7752) (p.161).

Only Count Dooku's minifigure has this torso, adorned with a cape clasp and brown belt

Enigmatic minifigure Count Dooku was once a Jedi Master, but he has fallen to the dark side. He now lurks in the shadows of the LEGO Star Wars galaxy, having remained exclusive to one LEGO set since 2002. As befits a man of Dooku's wealth and status, his minifigure wields a custom-made lightsaber and has a unique head and torso.

Obi-Wan Kenobi

JEDI KNIGHT

As a skilled Jedi Knight, Obi-Wan Kenobi is focused and controlled at a time of turmoil in the LEGO Star Wars galaxy. Two variants of his minifigure have starred in two sets; in both he faces dangerous challenges that require great judgment. He pursues bounty hunter Jango Fett in Jedi Starfighter (set 7143), and Zam Wesell in Bounty Hunter Pursuit (set 7133).

Knight flight
Obi-Wan Kenobi's long Jedi Knight hair is standard female LEGO hair. The hair piece in Obi-Wan's dark orange color is worn by only one other minifigure: a female airline passenger in the LEGO World City theme.

Jedi Starfighter (set 7143)

Jedi Master Obi-Wan Kenobi pilots a Delta-7 starfighter in this 2002 set—the only one to feature the Obi-Wan variant with a headset. The minifigure has binoculars and a lightsaber, but he has nowhere to store them when he zooms into flight mode.

Most Jedi Knights wear their hair long

This minifigure has a neatly trimmed beard and wears a headset on his head. The variant in Bounty Hunter Pursuit (set 7133), is identical but without the headset

Obi-Wan shares his Jedi tunic torso with two minifigures: his old mentor Qui-Gon Jinn (p.4) and the young Padawan version of himself (p.5)

Bounty Hunter Pursuit (set 7133)

The Padawan Anakin minifigure is involved in a fast-paced pursuit in this 2002 set, which is the only one to feature this version of Anakin. He and Obi-Wan Kenobi are chasing changeling assassin Zam Wesell on Coruscant. The Jedi minifigures can store their lightsabers within a secret compartment in their airspeeder.

Headstrong Padawan Anakin Skywalker is training under his more cautious mentor Obi-Wan Kenobi. The minifigure has broken away from Jedi tradition by wearing a torso piece with dark Jedi robes—this coupled with Anakin's half smiling face could suggest a darkness within him that he cannot control.

Bounty hunter Jango Fett keeps a low profile in the LEGO Star Wars galaxy. He is exclusive to one 2002 set: Jango Fett's Slave I (set 7153). Jango is made up of many unique LEGO pieces that might make his minifigure as legendary as the man himself, including his two-sided head piece, and helmet with a J-12 jetpack.

Jango Fett's Slave I (set 7153)

Jango Fett's Slave I has secret compartments and hidden weapons to aid Jango on his bounty-hunting missions. The ship even has a compartment where Jango's hair and blasters can be stored when he isn't using them.

Boba's unique yellow face with sloping eyebrows and a straight mouth gives him a serious look

Lady locks

Young Boba's long black hair is typically used on female minifigures. Luke Skywalker (p. 82) and Anakin Skywalker (p. 42) have also been known to sport this hair in LEGO Star Wars sets, but only Boba wears it in black.

Zam Weasel

BOUNTY HUNTER

This shady character has proven elusive in LEGO Star Wars and her minifigure is exclusive to one 2002 set. Zam Weasel is a bounty hunter with a special edge: She is a Clawdite shapeshifter who can alter her physical appearance as she chooses. Her minifigure head can change between her pretty human face and her natural Clawdite face!

Heavy helmet

Zam's face-framing crash helmet is only seen on her minifigure in LEGO Star Wars, but it is also used as a heavy-duty helmet (in various colors) by miners in the LEGO themes Rock Raiders and Power Miners. Only Zam wears it in light gray.

Tusken Raider Encounter (set 7113)

The Tusken Raider is exclusive to this set, which contains two of the minifigures. The Tusken has captured Anakin's mother, Shmi. When an enraged Anakin discovers their primitive camp on his swoop bike, it can only mean trouble.

Eye goggles offer protection from the fierce desert sun

Jedi Knight

MYSTERY MAN

Do you know this mysterious minifigure? Not very much is known about the Jedi Knight, who appeared on the Republic Gunship (set 7163)—and has never been seen again. Some know him as “Jedi Bob.” The hooded minifigure with a confident smile and a flowing cloak carries a green lightsaber, but he only uses it when forced to defend himself in battle.

Jedi Bob

Named only “Jedi Knight” on the LEGO set box for the Republic Gunship (set 7163), the minifigure has become “Jedi Bob” to many LEGO Star Wars fans! He was first named this in DK’s LEGO Star Wars: The Visual Dictionary (2009).

Republic Gunship (set 7163)

The Jedi Knight minifigure flies into LEGO Star Wars on this Republic Gunship. The Low-Altitude Assault Transport/infantry (LAAAT/i) deploys clone troopers as the Jedi Knight leads them into war against the Separatist army.

The Jedi Knight’s smiling, bearded face is also found on a construction worker in the LEGO City theme, and Mac, the astronaut in LEGO Life on Mars

The Jedi Knight may be a generic Jedi, but he has a unique torso. He wears a gray Jedi tunic and a belt with a silver buckle

AT-TE Walker (set 4482)

The AT-TE Walker comes with an army of four Phase I clone trooper minifigures, but it can carry up to seven. A gunner operates the rotating cannon and a driver pilots the vehicle from inside a central cabin.

Blast from the past

The Phase I clone trooper's blaster is a LEGO loudhailer with a translucent blue round plate attached. LEGO Star Wars minifigures carried this blaster until bespoke LEGO Star Wars blasters were released in 2007.

Blank Head

Phase I clone troopers do not have identities—they have faceless black heads under their LEGO helmets.

Utility belt carries clone trooper survival gear

Stripes denote the clone trooper's rank

Only Phase I clone troopers in Episode II sets wear these LEGO helmets

The Phase I clone trooper is part of a vast army that has been cloned from a single individual. Sealed in a heavy-duty shell of white armor, this minifigure is the first of its kind. During the Clone Wars, clone trooper armor is revised so it is lighter, stronger, and more adaptable.

In 2002, the first destroyer droid rolled into the world of LEGO Star Wars. Also known as a droideka, this robotic ball of firepower is a key part of the Separatists' ground forces. With its distinctive curved spine, the droid posed a challenge to LEGO designers. Two versions were created, the second a more elaborate and complex design.

Trade Federation MTT (set 7662)

A destroyer droid is delivered in a hulking troop transport along with racks of unfolding battle droids in this 2007 set. It shows the formidable firepower of the Separatist ground forces!

STAR VARIANT

Specially molded head-and-body piece is used for all three variants of the super battle droid

Bigger, bulkier, and more bullet-proof than standard battle droids, super battle droids are a force to be reckoned with. Not only are they physically stronger than their spindlier cousins, they also have more brainpower. Three variants of the hulking minifigure have been made—each more intimidating than the last.

In Geonosian Fighter, a Geonosian mans this sonic cannon on a platform that spins 360 degrees and hinges 90 degrees. The set was released in 2003 in a blue box and then in 2004 in a black box.

Monochrome head-mold

The two Geonosian warrior minifigures are identical except for the addition or omission of the orange wings

Geonosian Starfighter (set 7959)

This set, which exclusively features the 2011 Geonosian pilot minifigure, revisits the Geonosian starfighter model from 2003. The ships are flown by Geonosian pilots in the Battle of Geonosis.

The rocky outcrops of Geonosis house the hive colonies of an insectoid, hive-minded race, which is loyal to the Separatist cause. This 2011 Geonosian minifigure pilots a starfighter at the Battle of Geonosis. It has unique torso and leg printings and an all-new head shape that develops the original LEGO Geonosian head-mold.

Insectoid eyes bulge out of new head-mold

The second Geonosian head-mold has a more defined shape and new colored detail

Geonosian mandibulation markings

Chitin armor, with its composition of insect shell and animal skin, protects against the sonic energy weapons favored by Geonosians

Gold markings are typical of Geonosian decoration

Red iketa stones are symbols of war in Geonosian culture

Caped cyborg
 Grievous wears an intimidating cape in General Grievous Chase (set 7255)! One side of the unique cape is gray with a slash pattern, and the underside of the cape is dark red.

Skull-like mask contains the cyborg's eyes and brain

General Grievous's head-mold was specially created for his minifigure

General Grievous hates to be called a droid, so he won't be pleased that his LEGO arm pieces are also used on 20 LEGO Star Wars droids!

General Grievous carries a blaster as well as four lightsabers in General Grievous' Starfighter (set 7656)

General Grievous Chase (set 7255)

General Grievous entered LEGO Star Wars sets astride his imposing wheel-bike. He is being chased by General Obi-Wan Kenobi, who is on a giant varacyst lizard in this 2005 set—the first to feature Grievous. The bike has two pairs of legs to help him hot-foot it out of trouble!

Jedi Starfighter with Hyperdrive Booster Ring [set 7661]

Obi-Wan Kenobi and his Jedi starfighter zip into hyperspace with the help of a hyperdrive booster ring in this 2007 set. It is the only set to feature the latest variant of the minifigure.

Obi-Wan Kenobi wears a gold headset when piloting his Jedi Starfighter

STAR VARIANT

Light-up Jedi

A Light-up Lightsaber variant of Jedi Master Obi-Wan Kenobi appears in Ultimate Lightsaber Duel [set 7257]. The variant is not wearing a pilot headset.

Obi-Wan is now a Jedi Master, but he still wears simple and practical Jedi robes

DATA FILE

SET: 7661 Jedi Starfighter with Hyperdrive Booster Ring

VARIANTS: 4

Obi-Wan Kenobi is now a Jedi Master and he has achieved much military success as a General during the Clone Wars. His minifigure has appeared in four LEGO Star Wars sets, as a slightly different variant in each one. In Ultimate Lightsaber Duel (7257), Obi-Wan wields a light-up lightsaber when forced to fight his former apprentice, Anakin Skywalker.

Cloaked Kenobi

Jedi Master Obi-Wan wears a Jedi cloak in two LEGO sets: General Grievous Chase [set 7255] and Ultimate Lightsaber Duel [set 7257]. The Light-up Lightsaber variant in Ultimate Lightsaber Duel also wears a Jedi hood.

This Obi-Wan variant has tan legs, but all three earlier variants of the minifigure have dark orange leg pieces

Obi-Wan Kenobi
 JEDI MASTER

Anakin Skywalker

JEDI KNIGHT

Anakin Skywalker is now a lauded Jedi Knight. The minifigure has a battle-scarred face and a cyborg hand after Anakin faced many trials during the Clone Wars, but he has proven himself to be a hero of the LEGO Star Wars galaxy. Two variants of Anakin appear in three 2005 LEGO sets, one with a light-up lightsaber.

Cyborg hand concealed by a black glove. Count Dooku cut off Anakin's hand

Anakin is the only LEGO minifigure to wear this hair piece in a dark flesh color

STAR VARIANT

Light-less

This non-Light-up Lightsaber Anakin was released in two LEGO sets: Jedi Starfighter and Vulture Droid (set 7256) and Ultimate Space Battle (set 7283). The variant wears a headset and no cape.

Anakin's unique LEGO head has a button to control his light-up lightsaber

Facial scars are from a duel with Asajj Ventress during the Clone Wars

Dark Jedi tunic with black surcoat—this torso piece is exclusive to Anakin's Jedi Knight minifigure

Hip piece is integrated into the torso piece on Light-up Lightsaber minifigures

The hilt of Anakin's blue light-up lightsaber is joined to his arm piece so electric current can flow through it from a battery in his torso

STAR VARIANT

The first Emperor

The original Emperor Palpatine minifigure has different printing on his torso, yellow hands, and a yellow face with smaller (but no less terrifying!) eyes. He also walks with a cane. The variant is in three 2000–2002 sets.

Sith Lord Emperor Palpatine is the self-appointed ruler of the LEGO Star Wars galaxy. His minifigure dresses in simple black robes, and three variants carry a cane to make him look weak, but don't be fooled! This is a man of terrible power who has made his presence felt in seven LEGO sets.

Black hood hides Palpatine's face, which has been distorted by dark side energies

Lightning strike
Emperor Palpatine's red-bladed lightsaber is not his only powerful weapon. The minifigure lashes out at Luke Skywalker with deadly Force lightning on the LEGO Death Star (set 10188)!

Red-bladed 2008 lightsaber

Palpatine acquired this unique gray, wrinkled LEGO head with large, staring Sith eyes in the 2008 redesign

Black hands—a variant in the Imperial Inspection (set 7264) has gray hands

Palpatine's black robe printing was first seen on the 2008 redesign. Only this minifigure has this torso piece

Hologram

The Imperial Star Destroyer (set 6211) features Emperor Palpatine's minifigure as a hologram. His printed image appears on a sticker attached to a transparent-blue LEGO brick.

Clone Pilot

FEARLESS FLIER

The clone pilot is trained to fly the super-fast Republic and Jedi starships. His minifigure's uniform includes a blue jumpsuit, an armored torso with specialist equipment, and a high-tech helmet with communications system. There are three variants of the clone pilot, each with a different helmet and head piece.

Helmet is marked with red and yellow Republic symbols

Helmet contains an air filtration system

Torso and legs are the same as Captain Jag's minifigure (p.47), but Jag wears a different pilot helmet

White airtight flight gloves

Life support pack integrated into clone pilot uniform—in case of emergency

Masked pilot

Beneath his helmet, the clone pilot's face is covered by a flight mask. It is printed with breathing holes and a visor.

STAR VARIANT

Face revealed

The clone pilot of the 2010 ARC-170 Starfighter (set 8088) wears his plain helmet over a flesh-colored face printed with orange visor and chin strap.

Faceless

This original variant flies starships in two sets from 2005–2006. His white, fin-topped helmet covers a plain black head piece, and his torso features blue tubes.

Contingency plan

The clone pilot needs to be prepared for anything! The back of his torso is printed with a parachute.

Jedi Starfighter with Hyperdrive Booster Ring (set 7661)

Jedi Master Kit Fisto first appears in this set. He provides backup for Obi-Wan Kenobi, although there is no place for him aboard the starfighter—unless he pilots it instead of Obi-Wan!

Kit Fisto is a green-skinned Jedi Master. His minifigure dresses in brown and gray Jedi robes and carries a green lightsaber. The long tentacles that grow from his head can sense emotions in the people around him. As a respected Jedi General, Kit fights alongside other Jedi Knights and leads troops into battle in two LEGO sets.

Head of rubber
Kit Fisto is one of three LEGO Star Wars minifigures to feature a head made from rubber instead of ABS plastic. The others are Yoda (p. 17) and Plo Koon (p. 164). Rubber is easier to cast and can capture more detail, but it is prone to disintegrate.

Unique torso with brown-and-gray Jedi robes and silver belt

Kit is a Nautolan. He has green skin, big, black eyes, and head tentacles

Silver lightsaber hilt. The 2007 variant has a matte gray lightsaber hilt

Tentacles
The back of Kit Fisto's specially designed head sculpt displays more of his sensory head tentacles.

Pilot head

Captain Jag's head piece is also used for the clone pilot minifigure (p.44) and Zev Slesca (p.104).

The blue pattern design on Jag's open-fronted helmet piece is exclusive to his minifigure

Clone Captain Jag is a soldier and pilot during the Clone Wars. His minifigure appears in only one 2010 set, ARC-170 Starfighter (set 8088). He wears a blue jumpsuit and a life-support pack, common to pilot minifigures. His helmet has a unique design which differentiates him from the clone pilot minifigure (p.44).

Orange visor helps with visibility when flying in bright light

Helmet contains a life-support system because most starfighters do not have one on board

Front and back

The torso printing continues onto the back of Jag's torso piece. This LEGO piece was new for 2010 and is also seen on the clone pilot (p.44).

Luminara Unduli is a fierce fighter and strict Jedi Master. She wears the traditional robes of her home planet, Mirial, which allow more freedom of movement than Jedi robes. Luminara's minifigure carries a light-up lightsaber, which she puts to good use aboard the Wookiee Catamaran [set 7260].

Wookiee Catamaran (set 7260)
Luminara charges into battle on the planet Kashyyyk. She fights alongside Chewbacca, a Wookiee warrior, Yoda, and a clone trooper on the Wookiee Catamaran—the only set to include this Luminara minifigure.

Chewbacca

WOOKIEE HERO

Wookiee Chewbacca is a brave fighter and long-time companion of Han Solo. Although Chewie towers over his friend in the Star Wars movies, his LEGO minifigure is average height. Chewbacca appears in 11 LEGO sets, never hesitating to protect his home planet of Kashyyyk from Separatist invasion or fight alongside the Rebels.

STAR VARIANT

Original Wookiee

The first Chewbacca minifigure is made from the same pieces as the later variant, but they are all colored brown instead of reddish brown. The minifigure appears in three 2000–2001 sets.

Comic-Con exclusive

In 2009, a handcuffed brown Chewbacca minifigure appeared in a collectible display set made exclusively for San Diego's Comic-Con, with Luke Skywalker and Han Solo minifigures in stormtrooper disguise (pp82–83).

CAMOUFLAGED CLONE TROOPER

The Kashyyk trooper or "Swamp Trooper" is well-equipped for operations on jungle worlds. He wears custom-made camouflage armor and carries essentials for survival in harsh environments. The minifigure has been called up for action in only one LEGO Star Wars set to date.

Scout trooper

The Kashyyk trooper is part of a scouting unit based in the jungle world of Kashyyk, so his LEGO helmet is of the same design as the scout trooper minifigure (p.141). The scout trooper wears the helmet in white.

STAR VARIANTS

Chrome gold

This limited edition chrome gold C-3PO was randomly placed in 10,000 LEGO Star Wars sets to celebrate the 30th anniversary of Star Wars in 2007. The LEGO Group also made five 14-carat gold variants.

Light C-3PO

The original variant of C-3PO is light pearl-gold in color. It appeared in sets between 2001 and 2005. From 2008, the color of C-3PO changed to a richer pearl-gold.

Worrisome protocol droid

C-3PO has found himself in ten LEGO Star Wars sets since he was first released in 2001. C-3PO was the first LEGO Star Wars protocol droid and seven variants of him have since been released. All have kept his original protocol head-mold and printing but his gold tone has been refined from light pearl-gold to a brighter pearl-gold color.

C-3PO's connection wires are exposed in his mid-body section

Behind C-3PO

C-3PO's shiny gold armor continues on the back of his torso piece. You can also see his back plate and mid-body section.

Protocol droids

C-3PO was the first LEGO protocol droid and his head-mold was specially cast for him. The LEGO Group has since produced other protocol droids using the same head-mold: R-3PO, K-3PO (pp. 94–95), and the Death Star Droid (p. 81).

Captain Antilles

ILL-FATED CAPTAIN

This cool-headed captain of the consular cruiser Tantive IV is on a covert mission for the Rebel Alliance—he must transport secret Death Star plans across the galaxy. When his ship is invaded by Darth Vader, brave Antilles refuses to betray the location of the plans. However, swiveling the minifigure's double-sided head reveals the fate of his own personal mission!

Tantive IV (set 10198)

Captain Raymus Antilles is exclusive to this 2009 set. He commands the Tantive IV from a central control room, which has two monitors for the minifigure to track the ship's progress on.

LEGO Death

Captain Antilles meets a grizzly end when Darth Vader strangles him! This face shows his pained expression.

Rebel Scout Speeder (7668)

This 2008 set was the first to contain the Rebel Trooper minifigure—with enough to start a Rebel Army! Four Rebel troopers fit into the repulsortlift speeder: a pilot, two soldiers, and a gunner atop the turret.

This Rebel trooper is ready to fight for the Alliance! His minifigure comes well equipped for battle in his custom-made blast helmet, wielding plenty of fire power. The Rebel trooper has starred in just two sets—he arrived with several comrades in the first, and provides vital backup for Captain Antilles in the second.

Removable blast visor clips into holes at the sides of the helmet

Only the Rebel trooper and Captain Antilles (opposite) wear this blast helmet

Rebel helmet

This white blast helmet with an extended neck guard was specially designed for this minifigure.

Rebel troopers carry blaster guns like this as well as long blaster rifles

Although the Rebel trooper wears the standard-issue Rebel Army uniform of a sand-blue shirt and black combat vest, the torso is seen only on this minifigure

SENATOR OF ALDERAAN

As a member of the Galactic Senate and secret sympathizer of the Rebel Alliance, Princess Leia Organa is a symbol of hope across the LEGO Star Wars galaxy. She dresses in the traditional white robes of the Alderaan royal family. Her redesigned minifigure, with a double-sided head, escapes the clutches of Darth Vader in the 2011 Millennium Falcon (set 7965).

Princess Leia wears her hair in two braided buns when on Senatorial duty. The LEGO hair piece was specially created for Leia's minifigure

Leia wears this white torso piece with black and light bluish-gray printing in LEGO sets from 2007 onwards

Leia probably stole this blaster from Imperial forces!

STAR VARIANT

Original Leia
The first variant of Princess Leia appears in the original Millennium Falcon (set 7190), released in 2000. The minifigure has a yellow head and hands, and a unique torso with light gray printing.

Unique LEGO head is first seen on the 2011 design. It has feminine fluttering eyelashes and red lips

Serious side
While one side of Princess Leia's face has a relaxed smile, the other has a determined expression.

First Luke

The original variant of young Luke Skywalker has short tan hair, a yellow face and hands, and different printing on his torso and leg pieces. It appears in three 2000-2003 LEGO sets.

Luke wore standard long female LEGO hair from 2007 until this unique hair was created for his 2011 redesign

Unique head with a down-turned mouth and distinctive chin dimple is new for the 2011 redesign

Luke Skywalker is a poor farmboy who dreams of becoming a space pilot. The sullen expression on one side of his minifigure's dual-face head shows just how much he longs to escape the daily drudgery of life on his uncle's moisture farm! But when Luke meets exiled Jedi Obi-Wan Kenobi, his life changes forever.

Skyhopper Pilot

MYSTERIOUS MINIFIGURE

This T-16 skyhopper pilot cuts a mysterious minifigure in the LEGO Star Wars galaxy. He is found in only one LEGO set, and his visor permanently obscures his face so he is not recognized. What we do know is that this pilot is an ace at racing around the narrow ravines of Tatooine in his T-16 skyhopper!

Luke Skywalker?

Luke Skywalker flies a T-16 skyhopper as a teenager, even though his Uncle Owen disapproves of it. Could this pilot be Luke? The pilot's visor hides much of his face, but that distinctive chin dimple might give him away!

The T-16 pilot's torso was specially made for him. It shows the utility pockets and folds of his bright red jumpsuit.

This minifigure carries electrobinoculars for zooming in on distant targets and a blaster gun for shooting womp rats.

This pilot helmet was created for the T-16 pilot, but in 2006 Ten Numb (p.137) adopted it in reddish brown.

T-16 Skyhopper (set 4477)

This 2003 LEGO set is the only one that contains the T-16 skyhopper pilot minifigure. The model bears Luke Skywalker's flying decal—perhaps a hint that the minifigure might be him!

This yellow head with a visor pattern was first used on the scout trooper minifigure (p.141) in 1999.

Owen Lars is looking to buy some cheap droids for his moisture farm from passing Jawas in the Sandcrawler (set 10144), which the minifigure is exclusive to. Will Uncle Owen purchase the R2-D2 and C-3PO minifigures that also come with this set?

Poor moisture farmer Owen Lars is the uncle and guardian of Luke Skywalker. His minifigure is featured in only one LEGO set, while his loyal wife, Beru, is yet to be seen in LEGO form. When Jawas pass by his remote farm in their Sandcrawler (set 10144), Uncle Owen takes a look at the beat-up droids they are selling cheap—he could do with some help around the farm!

MOISTURE FARMER

Indigenous to the desert planet Tatooine, this Jawa minifigure is a small, industrious creature, always on the look out for items it can scavenge and sell on. Its humanoid shape is reflected in a standard minifigure form, though it has short, unposeable legs and a mysterious face. Fortunately, the LEGO plastic doesn't recreate the Jawa's distinctive body odor.

Sandcrawler (set 10144)

In this set, unwary droids need to watch out for Jawas on the prowl for anything they can sell. Here, R2-D2 is loaded by crane into the large Sandcrawler by three Jawas, eager to take him to market and make a profit.

Red droid

This minifigure, called "astromech droid" on LEGO packaging, appears in seven sets. It shares the same body as R5-D4's 2005 variant, but has a red-and-silver domed head. A different dome pattern appears on a 2007 variant in Y-Wing Fighter (set 7658).

R5-series astromech droids were originally conceived as a lower-cost, lower-functionality version of the R2-series. However, there is nothing lacking about this minifigure, which comes in three variants. The droid fulfills its piloting function in eight LEGO sets and, in Sandcrawler (set 10144), R5-D4 is sold by Jawas on Tatooine.

LEGO adaptation

Reproducing the world of Star Wars in LEGO bricks can require some adaptation. R5-D4 shares the same circular dome-shaped head piece as R2-series minifigures, although the original droid has a more funnel-shaped head.

LABOR DROID

This beaten-up ASP droid belongs to a clan of Jawa minifigures, though it could be yours for the right price! The minifigure is one of the many droids for sale on the LEGO Sandcrawler (set 10144). It is a general purpose droid designed to perform menial labor tasks, with a limited vocabulary and low brain power.

Sandcrawler (set 10144)

The ASP droid has been salvaged by Jawas and patched up in their workshop aboard the Sandcrawler. It is now ready to be sold on to any willing moisture farmers on Tatooine. The ASP droid is unique to this 2005 LEGO set.

Fellow LEGO droids A4-D (p.174) and the rocket droid commander (p.156) have this dark bluish-gray mechanical arm piece

Hardwearing
LEGO ASP droids closely resemble LEGO battle droids (pp.22-23). The droids' torsos, arms, and legs are identical. Both types of droid are built to last—one endures hard physical labor, while the other withstands blows on the battlefield.

Millennium Falcon (set 10179)

This 2007 version of Han's battered YT-1300 light freighter, the Millennium Falcon, is an Ultimate Collector's Edition set. The cockpit seats four minifigures, with Han and his right-hand Wookiee Chewbacca at the helm!

This bold minifigure is a loveable LEGO Star Wars rogue! The unlikely hero who found himself mixed up in the Rebellion against the Empire has starred in eight LEGO Star Wars sets. Like his beaten-up ship, the Millennium Falcon, Han's minifigure has been modified over the years—but he has retained his confident smile!

STAR VARIANT

Solo Solo
This is a rare original variant of Han Solo's minifigure. It appears in only one LEGO set: the first-ever LEGO Millennium Falcon (set 7190), released in 2000.

Han wears a black vest and light shirt

This light flesh head with white pupils is first seen in the 2011 design

Harrison Ford
Han Solo is the first LEGO minifigure to be based on the likeness of actor Harrison Ford, who plays Han Solo in the Star Wars movies—but he is not the only one to be based on Ford! There is also a LEGO Indiana Jones.

Unique painted hips feature pockets for Han's essentials, including a droid caller and blaster power cell reserves

Previous variants of this minifigure have featured brown and blue legs, but Han is hardly ever without his gun belt and quick-draw holster

THE EMPEROR'S HENCHMAN

Wearing a starched gray uniform, the Imperial officer minifigure is part of the Emperor's vast army. These high-ranking soldiers work far from the battlefield, aboard starships like the Imperial Shuttle (set 10212). First appearing in 2002 with an unusually cheery smile, the Imperial officer became more stern in 2010.

Dark bluish-gray Imperial officer kepi

The Imperial officer has a stern expression because he takes his work for the Empire very seriously. The Hoth Rebel trooper (p.103) and Hoth Imperial officer (p.99) have the same head

Dark bluish-gray tunic. All Imperial officer variants wear this uniform print, but the original, from Final Duel II (set 7201), has it in darker gray

First officer

This original variant is only in the 2002 set Final Duel II (set 7201). He has a sunnier disposition than his 2010 counterpart! Before the 2010 redesign, all Imperial officer minifigures had smiling faces.

Kepi

Many members of the LEGO Star Wars security forces wear a flat, circular cap with a peak called a kepi. The same kepi is worn in gray by Admiral Piett (p.98), in black by the Imperial pilot (p.126) and Juno Eclipse (p.204), and in blue by the Bespin guard (p.115).

White space armor is not only a good disguise—it can protect Luke from blaster bolts

Long locks

Luke's long hair is mostly used on female characters in other LEGO themes, but several LEGO Star Wars males favor the long-haired look, including the Anakin Skywalker (p.42), Obi-Wan Kenobi (p.28), and Boba Fett minifigures (p.31).

Death Star (set 10188)

In the depths of the Death Star, Luke, Leia, Chewbacca, and Han find themselves in the stinking trash compactor! The walls are closing in—can they escape in time? A mechanism above the room closes the walls.

Death Star (set 10188)

Both Luke Skywalker and Han Solo appear in several different guises aboard the Death Star: in stormtrooper disguise to rescue Leia from her detention cell (pictured), in their regular outfits, and Luke also appears in his Jedi Knight robes.

Quickwitted scoundrel Han Solo wears stolen stormtrooper armor to disguise himself on the Death Star. Like Luke, Han comes with both his standard reddish-brown hair and a stormtrooper helmet. He certainly needs the helmet if he is to get past the Death Star's real stormtroopers and rescue Leia—there is no hiding that trademark smirk!

X-WING PILOT

X-Wing Fighter (set 7140)

This X-Wing Fighter LEGO set includes two X-wing pilots—Biggs and his fellow Red Squadron pilot Luke Skywalker. The starship's cockpit does not have room for both pilots to fly together, so while one pilot takes flight, the other can wait on the ground with the fully equipped Rebel Technician minifigure (p. 135).

Custom helmet with checkered pattern and Rebel insignia

Brave X-wing pilot Biggs Darklighter appears with his childhood friend Luke Skywalker in the X-Wing Fighter (set 7140). He has remained exclusive to the set since its release in 1999. Known to his fellow Rebel pilots as "Red Three," Biggs's insulated flying helmet has a unique pattern on it. Biggs was killed in the Rebel's assault on the first Death Star.

Yellow heads were used on LEGO Star Wars minifigures from 1999 to 2004

The printing on this early X-wing pilot torso piece has fewer details than that worn by Luke Skywalker (opposite)

Chest pack straps

Mustache man
Biggs's mustachioed head is only used on his minifigure in the LEGO Star Wars theme, but it is used in lots of other LEGO themes for characters such as waiters, chefs, coast guards, and firemen.

Wedge Antilles

X-WING PILOT

Ace X-wing pilot Wedge

Antilles is the hero of three huge battles—Yavin, Hoth, and Endor—but he has featured in only one LEGO Star Wars set. Humble hero Wedge blends in among the other X-wing pilot minifigures in his Rebel flight suit and standard minifigure face, but his unique helmet sets him apart from the rest.

The same torso pattern is used—but on a red torso—for the B-wing pilot minifigure (p.136)

This orange pressurized g-suit is standard issue flight wear for LEGO X-wing pilots. It protects them from dangerous acceleration g-forces when flying at high speeds

X-Wing Fighter (set 6212)

Wedge Antilles is exclusive to the 2006 X-Wing Fighter set, which also includes X-wing pilot Luke Skywalker (p.82). The vehicle can change from Luke's Red Five to Wedge's Red Two X-wing with its unique wing details.

This simple, smiling face appears on 14 LEGO minifigures, including LEGO Star Wars pilots Dutch Vander (opposite) and Dak Ralter (p.105)

Wedge's custom-made X-wing pilot helmet has dark bluish-gray rectangles and a circle pattern along the sides.

STAR VARIANT

Yellow Dutch

This Dutch Vander variant has a yellow head with red hair and eyebrows and a headset to help him communicate with his squadron. It appears in the 1999 set TIE Fighter and Y-Wing (set 7150) and its 2002 and 2004 re-releases.

Dutch wears a unique helmet with a yellow grid pattern and Rebel insignia

Daring Jon “Dutch” Vander has the call-sign Gold Leader when he flies into battle as a Rebel pilot, but he is shot down in the Battle of Yavin. He is one of the only minifigures to have ever flown a LEGO Y-wing fighter. He appears in the starships in three LEGO Star Wars sets (and in two re-releases).

Y-WING PILOT

These elite pilots of the Imperial Navy are referred to as "bucketheads" by Rebel pilots because of their bulky helmets. Their unique headgear and flight suits are a self-contained life-support system that helps them survive in the vacuum of space. The TIE pilot minifigure has fought in five sets since 2001.

This custom TIE helmet is first seen in 2010. It is the same mold as the white helmet worn by the AT-AT driver minifigure (p.101)

TIE Defender (set 8087)

The redesigned TIE pilot has only appeared in the 2010 set TIE Defender (set 8087). The minifigure has no seat or controls in the starfighter's cramped cockpit, but it rotates as the starfighter twists and turns in battle.

Before 2010, the TIE pilot's helmet was the same design as the stormtrooper helmet (p.62). This original variant appears in two LEGO sets: TIE Fighter (set 7146) and TIE Bomber (set 4479).

The TIE pilot has worn this unique torso piece since its 2001 debut. The life-support chest piece helps the pilot adapt for changing altitudes

Hidden heads

A peek under the oversized helmet of the latest TIE pilot reveals a plain black head. A 2004 variant of the minifigure also has a black head, but the two earlier variants have brown and reddish-brown heads.

Hoth Wampa Cave (set 8089)

Poor Luke dangles from the roof of a cave awaiting his fate at the hands of the hungry wampa in this 2010 set! Can he escape? Luke in his Hoth uniform appears in no other LEGO sets.

Commander Luke Skywalker

is stationed with his Rebel Alliance squadron on the ice planet Hoth. The minifigure finds himself in a chilling situation when he is captured by a wampa ice creature in Hoth Wampa Cave (set 8089). Luckily LEGO Luke is braced to withstand subarctic temperatures in his insulated uniform and snow goggles.

These white snow goggles are also seen on the Hoth Rebel trooper minifigure (p.103)

Rebel Captain Han Solo is stationed on the ice planet Hoth. Han hates the cold, so his minifigure wraps up in a heavy-weather dark-blue parka when he leaves Hoth Echo Base (set 7879) on patrol duty. Back at the base, Han's minifigure can replace his parka hood with reddish-brown hair. Han in his Hoth gear appears in six LEGO Star Wars sets.

Parka hood

Han has a dark blue parka hood with a tan fur trim. The piece is first seen on this 2011 Hoth Han minifigure.

STAR VARIANTS

Cool Han

Han isn't quite so wrapped up for cold weather in the 2010 set AT-AT Walker (set 8129). Han's unique torso has an open jacket and white shirt, and wears brown pants.

First Leia

This variant of Leia in her Hoth gear appears in two sets: Millennium Falcon (set 4504) and X-Wing Fighter (set 6212). She wears Leia's trademark two-bun hair piece. She also has a different head and torso, and flesh-colored hands.

On duty on Hoth, Leia wears her hair back in braids. This LEGO hair piece is also seen on Leia in her Endor outfit (p.139)

Princess Leia has pulled back her hair, donned insulated gear, and is now ready for action on Hoth! Leia is an inspirational leader of the Rebel Alliance at Hoth Echo Base (set 7879). She is a key command figure, organizing troops and tactics from her command post, so her minifigure is unarmed. This version of Leia has two variants, which have starred in three LEGO sets.

Head first

Before Princess Leia acquired her current head, all LEGO Leias had the same head, which they shared with three other minifigures: Mon Mothma in LEGO Star Wars (p.129) and two female soccer players in LEGO Soccer.

Leia's unique torso has an insulated vest and zipped-up white jumpsuit

K-3PO has only ever appeared in this limited edition 2007 set, making him a rare LEGO minifigure. K-3PO watches from the sliding doors of the command center as Hoth Rebel trooper minifigures face off with Imperial snowtroopers who are attacking the Rebel base.

K-3PO is a one-of-a-kind droid in more ways than one. The white protocol droid is an invaluable tactical expert in the Rebel army—so much so that the Alliance High Command awarded him the position of lieutenant. He is also a limited-edition LEGO Star Wars minifigure that is exclusive to one set: Hoth Rebel Base (set 7666), released in 2007.

IMPERIAL ADMIRAL

Admiral Firmus Piett is the intelligent, but secretly incompetent, admiral of the Ultimate Super Star Destroyer (set 10221). He is skilled at avoiding conflict with Darth Vader by staying under the radar—much like his LEGO minifigure, which has long been absent from the LEGO Star Wars galaxy.

Ultimate Super Star Destroyer (set 10221)

Admiral Piett's first and only LEGO appearance is in this set from 2011. In it, he commands the imposing Star Dreadnought Executor warship.

Unwanted guests

In an AT-AT
 The Motorized Walking AT-AT (set 10178) from 2007 includes this variant of General Veers. He wears darker gray headgear plus goggles and a chin-strap. He does not wear black gloves in this LEGO set.

Ruthless and aggressive, Veers is the Major General of the Empire's Imperial Army. He leads the assault on Hoth and helps Darth Vader to capture Echo Base with his AT-AT Walker (set 8129). Parts of his minifigure are seen on other Imperial LEGO minifigures, but his disdainful facial expression remains unique to General Veers.

Light gray, cowi-like helmet piece also appears on the Hoth Imperial officer from the Snowtrooper Battle Pack (set 8084).

Dengar once suffered a severe head injury. Imperial agents fixed most of the damage, but Dengar always wears a head bandage.

Scarred face from a swoop-racer crash

This minifigure might wear makeshift armor, but don't underestimate him! Dengar is a dangerous bounty hunter. He is hired by Darth Vader to capture the Millennium Falcon and its passengers. Two variants of Dengar appear in two LEGO Star Wars sets, both with his huge Valken-38 blaster rifle close at hand.

STAR VARIANT*Ninja bandage

The 2006 Dengar variant comes with the LEGO set Slave I (set 6209). His torso and legs are different and the minifigure's standard LEGO head piece is covered with a white Ninja hood.

Dengar's armor is built from discarded Imperial materials. It includes pieces of armor from sandtroopers, snowtroopers, and stormtroopers

Dengar painted his armor gray

White gloves to protect hands

Bounty hunters

Most of the bounty hunters hired by Darth Vader to track down the Rebels can be found in LEGO Star Wars sets. Dengar, Boba Fett, Bossk, and IG-88 (pp.105-108) have all been made into LEGO minifigures. Only Zuckuss and 4-LOM remain elusive.

BOUNTY HUNTER

Mandalorian bounty hunter

Boba Fett appears in eight LEGO Star Wars sets, in six distinct variations. Boba's latest incarnation is battle-worn, but he is equipped with everything he needs to catch his prey: a probing rangefinder, a powerful jetpack, and his favorite EE-3 carbine blaster rifle.

DATA FILE

SET: 8097 Slave I

YEAR: 2010

PIECES: 7

EQUIPMENT: Jetpack, blaster, pauldron cloth

VARIANTS: 6

Wookiee hair is worn as a prize

Gray circular barrel is a Technic piece attached to a blaster gun

Blue-gray detachable rangefinder fits into a hole in Boba's helmet

Gray markings are battle damage

STAR VARIANTS

Bronze Boba

There are only two of these solid bronze Boba Fetts in existence. One was given away to a lucky competition winner as part of the LEGO "May the 4th" promotion in 2010.

Cloud City

This variant of Boba Fett has lots of detail, with printing on his arms and legs. It has only ever appeared in one LEGO Star Wars set—Cloud City (set 10123), released in 2003.

Jetpack (behind) is a sand-green version of the white jetpack used on the clone jetpack trooper (p.154)

Tattered fabric pauldron cloth is unique to Boba

The man beneath

Boba never removes his helmet in public, but a peek under his LEGO helmet reveals a battle-scarred face.

Slave I (set 8097)
 Bossk helps his fellow bounty hunter Boba Fett to capture Han Solo inside a block of carbonite in this 2010 set. Bossk doesn't have a seat aboard Fett's starship, Slave I, but he can fit beneath the cabin during flight.

Flying in style
 Bossk's flight suit has intricate details on the back as well as the front.

Blaster rifle is the weapon of choice for many LEGO Star Wars minifigures, including assassin droids (p.157) and senate commandos (p.184)

Painted infrared-vision eyes

Painted white teeth

Unique sand-green head is made from hard ABS plastic

White flak vest

Yellow high-altitude pressure suit

Bossk's body
 The torso design on Bossk's flight suit is unique to him. It is more detailed than the flight suit sported by Rebel pilots Luke Skywalker, Biggs Darklighter, Wedge Antilles, Dutch Vander (pp.84-87), and Dak Ralter (p.105).

This terrifying Trandoshan bounty hunter made his minifigure debut alongside redesigns of Boba Fett and Han Solo in 2010's Slave I (set 8097), although he doesn't actually have a place to sit onboard the LEGO starship! Bossk's reptilian head, complete with smooth horns and sharp teeth, was specially cast for this dangerous LEGO minifigure.

ALIEN BOUNTY HUNTER
Bossk

Assassin droid IG-88 stalks the LEGO Star Wars galaxy in three sets, and in each one he has a slightly different look—though each is as intimidating as the last. The monstrous minifigure is obsessed with hunting and killing, and he comes well equipped to pursue his passion. His round, sensor-filled head can see in all directions at once!

Cone-shaped head has motion, sound, and heat sensors that help IG-88 catch his prey

IG-88 has individual orange sensors on his silver head plate. Pre-2011 variants of his minifigure have a translucent orange round plate piece

STAR VARIANTS

Silver assassin

This metallic silver variant of IG-88 appears in Slave I (set 6209), released in 2006. He carries an older version of a LEGO Star Wars blaster.

White assassin

This white droid appears on the LEGO Death Star (set 10188). He is thought to be a variant of IG-88, but he is not named as him on the set box.

Lando's head

This Lando Calrissian has a unique brown head with a suave slim mustache and winning smile! The two other versions of LEGO Lando (p. 121; p. 130) have the same head piece in a reddish-brown color.

This cool customer is the Baron Administrator of Cloud City. Lando Calrissian has a flamboyant personality and sense of style—something that is reflected in his LEGO minifigure, with his extravagant yellow-lined cloak and baronial outfit. Lando in all his finery only stars in the 2003 set Cloud City (set 10123), alongside his old gambling partner Han Solo.

The version of Lando dressed in his General outfit (p. 130) has this same short black hair piece

Unique torso features a dark-blue collared shirt and matching Baron Administrator state belt

Blaster is made from a LEGO loudhailer piece

Lando's exclusive cape is blue on the outside and yellow on the inside. It is a status symbol that distinguishes him as Baron Administrator of Cloud City

BARON OF CLOUD CITY

Half-man, half-robot, Lobot is Lando Calrissian's cyborg assistant. Lobot's double-sided head is the only clue that he is not fully human: One side has a human face, while the other is printed with a computer implant. As Cloud City's computer liaison officer, Lobot is one of a kind—and so is his rare minifigure.

Twin-Pod Cloud Car (set 7119)

Lobot is the only minifigure to come with the Twin-Pod Cloud Car set. He fits snugly into one of the pods, from which he pilots the atmospheric vehicle around Cloud City to run errands.

Unique double-sided yellow head piece

The radio is a common piece in other LEGO themes, but it is exclusive to Lobot in LEGO Star Wars

Unique torso is printed with Lobot's plain, functional gray tunic and black belt over a tan shirt

Unusual behavior

It is only in a LEGO Star Wars set that Lobot would pilot a Twin-Pod Cloud Car. Usually, Lobot would leave the flying of vehicles to Cloud Car pilots, and focus on controlling the computer systems on Cloud City.

Lobot uses his radio to send messages to Lando Calrissian and other workers on Cloud City

Super computer

CYBORG COMMAND CENTER

Cloud City (set 10123)

Leia's unique Cloud City minifigure is exclusive to this LEGO set. She can use the sliding cafeteria door to hide from stormtroopers, while Luke's Cloud City minifigure duels Darth Vader at the city's spiky core.

Hair tied into a single, long braid

Shared hair

The same long, top-braided hairstyle worn by Leia when she relaxes on Cloud City is also worn by Padmé, Leia's mother. The hair piece was first used for Padmé Naberrie's 1999 minifigure (p. 7) and is exclusive to LEGO Star Wars.

Unique torso printed with a collared white cloak

Leia's brown and dark orange top is decorated with a triangle-shaped belt

A flesh-colored version of this head piece is used for Mon Mothma's minifigure (p. 129)

CLOUD CITY

Luke arrives on Cloud City to rescue his friends. But it is a trap! Darth Vader is waiting for him. This exclusive minifigure is dressed in a tan jumpsuit, which is not restrictive, allowing Luke to put up a good fight against Vader. But there is nothing Luke can do to protect his minifigure's right hand, which he loses in battle.

Cloud City (set 10123)

Luke's minifigure wields his blue lightsaber against Darth Vader. But Vader uses the Force to make a LEGO wall collapse! When Luke reaches the window, a LEGO mechanism catapults him out over the city's reactor core.

This LEGO head piece is only used for Luke Skywalker minifigures

Tan torso

This tan torso is unique to Luke's Cloud City minifigure in the LEGO Star Wars theme. However, it has also been used for farmer and worker minifigures in the LEGO City and LEGO Town themes.

LEGO hand piece can be removed to show the terrible outcome of Luke's duel with Darth Vader

Slave I (set 6209)

The Bespin security guard makes his only LEGO Star Wars appearance in the 2006 set Slave I. He helps carry Han Solo's carbonite-frozen minifigure to Boba Fett's ship, Slave I, which has a special compartment that opens to store the carbonite block containing Han Solo.

The Bespin guard is the only LEGO minifigure to have this standard LEGO head piece in reddish brown.

Sergeant Edian?

This security guard minifigure might be Sergeant Edian, a loyal guard who works for Lando Calrissian on Cloud City—although he is not named in the LEGO set he comes in.

Unique arm pieces are printed with red markings, which indicate the rank of sergeant.

The Bespin security guard only appears in one LEGO set, but he has a very important job. His minifigure helps keep the peace on Cloud City. The security guard's official blue uniform is enough to deter most minifigures from breaking the rules, but some criminals don't take the hint. He might have a smiling LEGO face, but beware of his deadly blaster!

Unique torso is printed with a gold trim and the insignia of the Bespin security guards.

Relby-K23 blaster pistols are standard issue for Bespin security guards.

Increased

The original variant of this minifigure has yellow skin, light eyebrows, and no creases on his shirt—even though it appears in Desert Skiff (set 7104), when Han has just escaped after a few days in a cramped carbonite prison.

Ford's hair

The reddish-brown variant of this common LEGO hair piece is used only for Han Solo in the LEGO Star Wars theme. The same color is also used for Indiana Jones's minifigure, which is based on a character also played by actor Harrison Ford.

Apart from his stormtrooper disguise, this is the only Han Solo minifigure without a gun holster printed on his pants. Han won't be needing a gun where he is going!

Jabba's Palace (set 4480)
 Jabba sits on a raised throne in his royal palace, where he keeps an eye on his slave, Princess Leia. There is a sneaky trapdoor beneath the throne, which Jabba can open to dispose of anyone who is silly enough to get on his nerves!

Jabba the Hutt is a slimy, green crime lord who orchestrates shady schemes across the LEGO Star Wars galaxy. The vile villain's head-and-torso piece is a unique LEGO mold. It is almost impossible to miss Jabba's enormous slug-like minifigure—even though he only comes in two LEGO sets.

Tail tales
 Jabba's minifigure requires some assembly: His slimy tail comes in two pieces that clip together. The end piece is also used for the tail of Obi-Wan's varactyl, Boga, and for the tails of the dewback creatures of Tatooine.

Jabba The Hutt
 INTERGALACTIC GANGSTER

The Gamorrean guard protects Jabba the Hutt in two LEGO sets. Brutish, strong, and dull-witted, his minifigure does whatever his boss Jabba tells him and never makes a fuss. His minifigure wears sand-green armor that is attached to his unique head piece, and is armed with a deadly vibro-ax.

JABBA'S PIG GUARD

Jabba's Message (set 4475)

Bib Fortuna guards the entrance to Jabba's palace in this set—the only one he comes in. When R2-D2 and C-3PO turn up, Bib and the eye droid in the palace door interview the droids before they enter.

Twii'leks

Just two Twii'lek minifigures have been released in LEGO Star Wars: Bib Fortuna and Aayla Secura (p.177). Both Twii'leks have tentacles that clip onto a standard LEGO head piece, although Bib's are longer, because he is older.

Unique hat piece depicts Bib's bulging head and fully grown Twii'lek tentacles

Metal chestplate protects against attacks made by Jabba's enemies

Bib is very old, and has lived in Jabba's palace for many years. His skin is pale and wrinkled from decades without sunlight

Unique torso is printed with a long belt that fastens Bib's robes

Bib Fortuna is Jabba the Hutt's eerie assistant. The Twii'lek minifigure decides who gets to speak to Jabba—and who doesn't. His rare minifigure only comes in one LEGO set, dressed in dark blue robes with a metal chestplate and black cape. EV-9D9 is a distinctive droid, but fortunately for the droids in the LEGO Star Wars galaxy, this sadistic robot comes only in one set.

Jabba's Palace (set 4480)

EV-9D9 is exclusive to the Jabba's Palace set. The demented droid has her own workspace beneath Jabba's throne, where she assesses new droids and puts them to work. The set includes a computer monitor to keep track of the droids and a poor GNK droid who is at EV-9D9's mercy!

The transparent jar that houses the B'omarr monk's brain is an upside-down crystal ball LEGO piece! It has appeared in various sets in the LEGO Harry Potter, LEGO Atlantis, and Fantasy Era themes.

Perhaps the strangest creatures in Jabba's palace are the B'omarr monks. These ancient beings used to be fully alive, but now only their brains remain, attached to a four-legged, spider-like droid body. The monk's minifigure is made from 13 separate pieces, and is exclusive to Jabba's Palace (set 4480).

The B'omarr monk's legs are LEGO samurai sword pieces. It is the only LEGO minifigure to feature the piece

Telepath response unit allows the monks to communicate silently with each other

Locomotion unit connects the brain support unit to the legs

Disembodied brain of the original B'omarr monk is kept alive in a fluid-filled container

Transparent orange stud piece is used as the brain

Droid legs are automated to carry the brain around Jabba's palace

LEGO crystal ball piece has a thick section of plastic at the top, which looks like a collection of fluid

Luke has a green LEGO Lightsaber after losing his blue one during a duel with Darth Vader.

STAR VARIANTS

Two-hand Luke

Jedi Knight Luke has two flesh-colored hands in Jabba's Sail Barge (set 6210), released in 2006. He also has a different head to the later 2010 variant.

Hooded figure

This variant of Luke has a black hood and cape to keep a low profile in the Star Wars #2 LEGO minifigure pack (set 3341). He doesn't come with hair.

This head with white-eye pupils and Luke's distinctive chin dip was first seen on the 2010 design of Jedi Knight Luke.

Mechanics

Jedi Knight Luke lost his right hand to Darth Vader during a duel, but variants of his minifigure released in sets before 2008 do not have a black cybernetic hand—they have two matching yellow or flesh-tone hands instead.

Luke now wields his lightsaber with a black cybernetic hand.

Aboard the LEGO Death Star, two elite Death Star guard minifigures control the mechanism for the superlaser firing dish. The huge laser is ready to destroy anything in its path at Darth Vader's command.

With its extended neck guard, the Death Star guard's helmet bears a resemblance to that worn by Darth Vader (p.61)

The Rebel trooper (p.65) also has this LEGO head with printed black chin guard

The minifigure has a LEGO blaster to use when he requires it, but for many of his duties he remains unarmed

With a stern countenance and full black attire, the Death Star guard is a deliberately intimidating minifigure. He is part of a handpicked, elite fighting force that can handle any number of combat and non-combat roles for the Imperial Navy, appearing aboard the LEGO Death Star (set 10188) and at The Battle of Endor (set 8038).

Black attack

The Death Star guard is the only LEGO minifigure to wear his helmet in black. However this style is popular with other Imperial minifigures: General Veers (p.99) and the Imperial AT-ST driver (p.100) wear it in gray tones.

This minifigure has piloted the Imperial shuttle in two LEGO sets since 2001.

STAR VARIANT

Happy pilot

The original variant of this minifigure has a yellow head with the basic LEGO smiling face. He also wears an all-black uniform, but with much less detail. This rare, cheerful pilot only appears in the 2001 set Imperial Shuttle (set 7166).

Black cap is also worn by another Imperial pilot, Juno Eclipse (p.204)

This pilot takes his job very seriously

Imperial Shuttle (set 10212)

The Imperial pilot does not fly battle craft, so he does not require the life-support equipment that LEGO TIE pilots wear (p.88). His uniform is a plain black suit with a black, blaster-proof vest

On both sides
The Imperial pilot's fierce, flesh-colored head appears on both sides of the Empire/Rebel conflict. It is used for the Hoth Imperial officer (p.95), as well as for the Hoth Rebel trooper minifigure (p.103).

Home One Mon Calamari Star Cruiser (set 7754)

On board Rebel ship Home One, Mon Mothma briefs the other Rebel leaders about plans for the attack on the second Death Star. They gather in the command center around an orange hologram of the Death Star.

Former Senator Mon Mothma is the Supreme Commander of the Rebel Alliance. In her all-white outfit and rare white LEGO cape, her minifigure commands respect from all the Rebel leaders. Mon Mothma is exclusive to the LEGO Star Wars set Home One Mon Calamari Star Cruiser (set 7754), where she discusses the latest Rebel plans to defeat the Empire once and for all.

SET: 7754 Home One Mon Calamari Star Cruiser
YEAR: 2009
PIECES: 5
EQUIPMENT: Cape
VARIANTS: 1

Unique torso printed with silver Chandrilian Freedom Medal

Same head piece as Princess Leia, another former senator

Tousled hair
 Mon Mothma's tousled reddish-brown hair is the same piece as that used for the Clone Wars version of Anakin Skywalker's minifigure (p.147).

Mon Mothma is the only minifigure to wear a white cape in LEGO Star Wars

Mon Mothma
 REBEL COMMANDER

Admirable Admiral Ackbar commands the Rebel assault on the second Death Star from his flagship Home One (set 7754). Ackbar appears only in this one LEGO set—but his minifigure plays a pivotal part in LEGO Star Wars history! Ackbar is one of three Mon Calamari minifigures, but his unique commander uniform makes him stand out.

Home One Mon Calamari Star Cruiser (set 7754)

Admiral Ackbar coordinates the Rebel assault on the second Death Star in this set. He has a swiveling and sliding command chair, and a tactical computer that can mount his lap. The set even contains his coffee cup!

Unique LEGO torso features a cream Mon Calamari naval jerkin over a white space suit

Solid plastic Mon Calamari head with large, bulbous eyes. The Mon Calamari officer (p.133) and Nahdar Vebb (p.173) have the same head piece

Metallic command insignia denotes Ackbar's high rank

Admiral attire

The details of Ackbar's jerkin and utility belt continue on the back of his torso piece. Ackbar keeps vital command equipment in the six pockets of his belt.

Reddish-brown webbed hands

Special set

Admiral Ackbar also appears in the exclusive LEGO Star Wars Collectible Display Set 2, which was available for one day only at the 2009 San Diego Comic-Con. Crix Madine (p.131) and Jedi Knight Luke Skywalker (p.124) were also included in the set.

REBEL SUPREME COMMANDER

Home One Mon Calamari Star Cruiser (set 7754)

Together with other Rebel leaders Mon Mothma, Admiral Ackbar, and Lando Calrissian, General Crix Madine plans the destruction of the second Death Star during the Battle of Endor.

General Crix Madine has not always been loyal to the Rebel cause—he was once an Imperial Army officer—but he is now an important leader of the Rebel Alliance with invaluable insider knowledge. His minifigure is exclusive to just one limited edition LEGO set, but he is there when it counts—the most crucial battle in the LEGO Star Wars galaxy!

General Crix Madine's happy, brown-bearded face is unique to his minifigure

Collar pips denote rank

Black-gloved hands

Hair first
General Crix Madine was the first LEGO minifigure to sport the standard short hair piece in a dark tan color. It has since been seen on only one other minifigure: a faceless mannequin in a shop in the LEGO City theme.

Communications badge allows Madine to contact Rebel command and other leaders

This tan torso piece was created specifically for Madine's minifigure

General Crix Madine
 REBEL LEADER

General Lando Calrissian is one of the Rebel generals on board the Home One Mon Calamari Star Cruiser (set 7754), which is in battle against the second Death Star. His minifigure has a unique LEGO cape which makes him even more boldly confident than usual! It appears to help him direct a particularly assertive attack on the colossal Imperial battle station.

Home One Mon Calamari Star Cruiser (set 7754)

It is the Rebels' final assault on the second Death Star and Lando is a general in this 2009 set. He spends a lot of time in the briefing area of the command center.

General Lando's reddish-brown head is also seen on his skiff guard minifigure (p.123). When he is a Baron of Cloud City (p.111), he has a darker brown head

The brown sash across Lando's chest is a gun holster. He wears a matching brown utility belt for storing ammunition

This badge displays Lando's rank, as do the pips on his collar

Classic cape

This minifigure's cape design appears on many other LEGO minifigures. However the sand-blue color is unique to Lando. His cape denotes his authority and rank as a Rebel general. It fastens with a blue cord.

Home One Mon Calamari Star Cruiser (set 7754)

The officer mans the repair station in the hangar bay, but also has a seat in the briefing chamber.

Part-man, part-amphibious

humanoid, this officer—exclusive to 2009’s Home One Mon Calamari Star Cruiser (set 7754)—is one of three Mon Calamari LEGO minifigures. His main job is to maintain and repair the A-wing starship when it is not on a mission.

The Mon Calamari officer’s distinctive head-mold is exactly the same as that used for his fellow Mon Calamari, Admiral Ackbar (p. 130) and Nahdar Vebb (p. 173)

Vote winner

The Mon Calamari Officer minifigure helped this limited edition set to win the 2009 LEGO Star Wars Fan’s Choice Competition, which fans voted for online.

This officer has a unique torso. The dark bib protects his tan uniform from oil and dirt in the repair station

The A-wing pilot is part of a force known as Green Squadron because of his distinctive green flight jumpsuit. His minifigure plays a crucial role in the Battle of Endor, flying his A-wing fighter in three LEGO Star Wars sets—most recently the Home One Mon Calamari Star Cruiser (set 7754) in 2009. There are three variants of his minifigure, each with subtle differences.

The A-wing pilot's green torso features a flight vest and life-support unit. The printing is unique to his minifigure.

STAR VARIANT

Yellow pilot

The original A-wing pilot has a yellow face with a printed headset and a slightly different helmet design. His body is the same as the 2009 variant. He is only in the A-Wing Fighter (set 7134), released in 2000.

Translucent yellow visor clips into holes at the sides of the pilot's helmet. A variant in the 2006 A-Wing Fighter (set 6207) has a translucent black visor.

Rebel pilots

Only the A-wing pilot minifigure wears a green flight suit in the LEGO Star Wars galaxy. X-wing and Y-wing pilots wear orange flight suits, while B-wing pilots wear red ones.

Standard flesh-colored LEGO head with a happy smile.

Classic LEGO helmet with a red and white stripe pattern. The B-wing pilot (p.136) wears the same helmet piece with different printing.

Dark green legs with black hips do not appear on any other LEGO Star Wars minifigure.

A-Wing Fighter (set 6207)

The Rebel technician rides around on a yellow transport cart, or military cargo speeder, with joystick controls. His cart has a ladder integrated into it. The technician uses the ladder to board the A-wing fighter in this set.

This helmet design can be seen in varying colors on many LEGO minifigures in other themes, including skateboarders in LEGO Gravity Games

Unique torso with plain gray tunic that has pockets for storing repair equipment

This standard LEGO smiling expression has appeared on hundreds of LEGO minifigures

Engineer

The A-Wing Fighter (set 7134) from 2000 contains a Rebel engineer minifigure, which is very similar to the original Rebel technician. He has the same body and cap, but his face has a straighter mustache and no stubble.

STAR VARIANT

Rebel control

In the 2000 set B-Wing at Rebel Control Center (set 7180), the Rebel technician wears a tan uniform and a tan cap. He has a yellow LEGO head with a large mustache and stubble.

Rebel Technician

REBEL MECHANIC

The B-wing pilot is ready to fly the largest single-seat starship in the Rebel fleet! His minifigure has appeared in two LEGO sets since 2000, both times with his B-wing starfighter. Like other Rebel pilots, he wears a jumpsuit and life support pack, but he is distinguished by his bright red coloring and unique helmet.

Yellow face

This yellow-faced variant appears in the 2000 LEGO set B-Wing at Rebel Control Center (set 7180). Apart from skin color, variations include a face with eyebrows and a transparent yellow visor instead of a black one.

The pilot wears a red jumpsuit and white flak vest

Only two other LEGO Star Wars minifigures have red leg pieces: the Royal Guard (p.127) and Chancellor Palpatine (p.186)

Pilot torso

The B-wing pilot's red torso is unique to his minifigure, but the same design is used on an orange torso for X-wing pilots Luke Skywalker, Biggs Darklighter, Wedge Antilles, Dutch Vander (pp.84-87), and Dak Ralter (p.185).

Standard LEGO head piece printing gives the B-wing pilot a cheerful disposition

Life support pack is standard issue for Rebel pilots

Black flight gloves

B-Wing Fighter (set 6208)

Ten Numb fits comfortably into the B-wing's cockpit, where he mans the controls. From the cockpit, Ten can activate any of the starfighter's weapons, including the laser cannon, ion cannons, twin blaster, and torpedo launchers.

The same helmet is worn in red by the T-16 skyhopper pilot (p.68)

Ten's Sullustan face is printed wearing his breathing mask, which is attached to the life support pack on his chest

Ten's life support pack is different from human packs because Sullustans breathe differently

Gear harness

Sullustan pilot Ten Numb flies a B-wing during the Battle of Endor. His Rebel call sign is Blue Five. Ten is the only Sullustan minifigure to date, and his face is printed with creases that are a common Sullustan feature. His minifigure wears a brown helmet and white jumpsuit with a unique torso pattern. Ten is exclusive to B-Wing Starfighter (set 6208).

Color confusion

In Star Wars: Episode VI Return of the Jedi, Sullustian pilots wear red jumpsuits, like the B-wing pilot (opposite). Ten's minifigure was created from a pre-production image that showed Ten dressed in a white jumpsuit.

Torso is printed with data readers and power gauges, which monitor Ten's air supply and life support pack

Hair piece

Luke's short hair is a classic LEGO piece, but only Luke Skywalker minifigures wear it in tan in LEGO Star Wars. However, it is seen in other themes, including LEGO Harry Potter and LEGO Soccer.

Luke's torso is unique to his minifigure. The camouflage pattern does not continue on the back—it is plain khaki instead.

Speeder Bikes (set 7128)

Luke is pursued by two scout troopers on speeder bikes through the forests of Endor in this 1999 set. Luke's minifigure can stand on a LEGO tree to hide from the scout trooper minifigures.

Luke is the only LEGO minifigure to have this head piece with small eyebrows and a chin dimple. It is seen on four other versions of his minifigure, including Luke in his Dagobah gear (p.106) and Cloud City Luke (p.114).

This minifigure comes with a green lightsaber. Like Luke's green torso, it can blend in with the scenery.

CAMOUFLAGED WARRIOR

The Rebel commandos are on a mission to destroy the shield generator bunker! There are two versions of the camouflaged commando minifigure, and both appear only in The Battle of Endor (set 8038). The minifigures are dressed in identical green fatigues with lots of printed detail, but each has an individual head.

No beard

The second Rebel commando in this set has a clean-shaven, frowning head piece. The same head is used for Galen Marek's minifigure (p.203).

Backpack

A gray bracket fits around the commando's neck. To this, he can clip his dark green LEGO backpack.

Unique LEGO helmet is perfect for camouflage in the forest

Bearded head piece is unique to the Rebel commando

Green backpack contains the commando's supplies and extra battle gear

Only two other LEGO Star Wars minifigures have sand-green legs: Onaconda Farr (p.171) and the Gamorrean guard (p.118)

The Battle of Endor (set 8038)

The scout trooper chases Ewok and Rebel minifigures through the forest of Endor in this LEGO set. He flies a repulsorlift speeder bike, which has a lightweight blaster cannon and is easy to maneuver through thick trees.

Black LEGO head piece is visible beneath the helmet, creating a visor effect

Electronic visor enhances the minifigure's vision

Built-in comlink system can support long-distance communication

Kashyyyk trooper
 This helmet piece is used in sand-green for the Kashyyyk trooper minifigure (p.52). Kashyyyk troopers are a scouting unit based in the jungles of Kashyyyk, where they require camouflaged armor.

The scout trooper often undertakes long, solo missions. He carries survival rations with him at all times

Along with his fellow Ewok warrior Paploo (p. 144), Wicket was one of the earliest LEGO Ewoks. Chief Chirpa (opposite) followed in 2009, while Logray and a black Ewok appeared in 2011 (pp. 145–146).

Ewoks are small in stature, so Wicket has short, unposeable LEGO legs

STAR VARIANT

Original Ewok

The original Wicket W. Warrick is all brown, with no printing on his head-and-torso piece. The variant appears exclusively in the 2002 set Ewok Attack (set 7139).

Detailed face printing is first seen on the 2009 design

Wicket's dark orange hood has stitching where he once tore it

The 2009 variant is made up of reddish-brown LEGO pieces

Leader of the Ewoks, Chief Chirpa is a wizened old minifigure who commits his tribe to the fight against the Empire in The Battle of Endor (set 8038). Chief Chirpa's tribe of Ewok minifigures may be diminutive but they are fierce warriors when called into battle. Chirpa has a unique ruling staff that is topped with the horns of animals he has hunted.

The horns on Chief Chirpa's staff are also seen on Viking helmets in the LEGO Vikings theme

Chirpa wears a reddish-brown hood with a rough tie and a trophy tooth from an animal he has hunted

Ewoks keep their ears free from their hoods so they are able to hear well when out hunting

Ewok sandwich
All LEGO Ewoks have combined head-and-torso pieces. The front and back of the integrated torso covers a standard minifigure torso like a sandwich-board advertising sign.

This minifigure is the only black Ewok in LEGO Star Wars

Dathomir Speeder (set 7957)

This 2011 LEGO set is the latest to feature the Clone Wars version of Anakin Skywalker.

Asajj Ventress and her new Sith apprentice Savage Oppress attempt to take flight in their Dathomir speeder, but Anakin has other ideas!

During the Clone Wars, Anakin Skywalker becomes known throughout the LEGO Star Wars galaxy as the "Hero With No Fear." His minifigure battles for the Republic in eight LEGO sets, but could the exhausted, drawn expression on Anakin's unique face hint at the growing darkness within the brave Jedi Knight?

The Clone Wars clone trooper has fought for the Republic in eight Clone Wars sets since 2008. His Phase I armor has been updated with a more stylized graphic pattern and, unlike the classic clone trooper minifigures (p.35; p.53), this soldier has an identity! Instead of a plain black head piece, this trooper has a new clone face under his sleeker, simpler helmet.

Signs of rank

High-ranking clone troopers often wear extra LEGO pieces over their basic white armor. Modifications include a visor shield that clips to the helmet, a shoulder pauldron to denote rank, and a kama blaster-shield around the waist.

CLONE WARS SOLDIER

Clone Trooper Battle Pack (set 7913)

The clone commander is exclusive to this LEGO set. He flies a green and white BARC speeder, which is the perfect vehicle for chasing down fast-moving enemy targets.

Unique helmet is printed with green markings and a smaller visor than the clone trooper (opposite)

The clone commander leads a regiment of troopers into battle against the Separatists. He wears battle armor that has been customized with green markings and highlights to reflect his rank and unit. The minifigure appears alongside two bomb squad troopers and an ARF trooper in the Clone Trooper Battle Pack (set 7913).

Clone torsos

The Clone Wars clone trooper torso design (opposite) is used on almost every Clone Wars trooper minifigure. To differentiate minifigures by rank and unit, different colors and insignia are printed over the basic armor pattern.

Small blaster pistols were released in 2011 and are exclusive to LEGO Star Wars

Yoda's Clone Wars minifigure is just as wise and powerful as his classic minifigure, but he has a different look. The Clone Wars version of the ancient Jedi Grand Master has a bigger green head-mold—now with printed eyes—and a new, unique torso. But Yoda still wields his green lightsaber as he leads the clone army into battle against Separatist forces.

Armored Assault Tank (set 8018)

Clone Wars Yoda only appears in this one set, where he and a single clone trooper take on two battle droids, three super battle droids, and an armored assault tank! Although the AAT has missile launchers and a laser cannon, Yoda uses the Force to triumph.

Two Yodas

This Clone Wars Yoda has been designed to look more cartoon-like than the classic Yoda minifigure (p. 17) to reflect the animated Clone Wars series. He has a bigger head, different ears, and large, painted eyes.

Yoda's head is made from rubber, like the Plo Koon (p.164), Kit Fisto, (p.45) and classic Yoda (p.17) minifigures

Yoda's head-mold has larger ears than the classic Yoda minifigure

Unique torso is printed with Yoda's simple tan robes and brown undershirt

Asajj Ventress

SITH ASSASSIN

Asajj Ventress is a deadly assassin who works for the Sith Lord Count Dooku. Her fearsome minifigure has a unique head, torso, and legs, and wields twin red-bladed lightsabers. Asajj has dark side powers and a fiery temper—and she is on a mission to cause trouble for the Jedi in two LEGO Clone Wars sets.

Purple tattoo markings are continued on the back of the head

Extra printing

As well as her tattoo markings, Asajj Ventress's sleeveless body suit armor printing also continues on to the back of her torso piece. The 2008 variant doesn't have printing on the back.

Asajj's Sith training gives her expert lightsaber skills

Unique head piece is printed with tattoos, which are in memory of Asajj's former master, Ky Narec

Asajj also appears in the 2008 LEGO set Republic Attack Gunship (set 7676). Her minifigure still carries deadly twin lightsabers, but she is dressed in a different outfit with a unique torso and black cloth skirt.

Count Dooku's Solar Sailer (set 7752)

Count Dooku's Clone Wars minifigure is exclusive to this set, which also features his solar sailer ship and small, one-seater speeder bike (pictured). The solar sailer has a secret cargo bay in which the speeder can be hidden when Count Dooku isn't using it.

Red lightsaber blades are only used by the Sith

Count Dooku is the powerful leader of the Separatists—but he is also a Sith Lord! His Clone Wars minifigure is dressed in dark colors, with a cape and hood, so he can carry out secret missions in shadowy corners of the LEGO Star Wars galaxy. Dooku's mysterious minifigure only appears in one set.

Unique face is printed with hooded eyes and wrinkles that are a result of Dooku's dark side training

Hair-raising
Count Dooku's gray, swept-back hair with a widow's peak is also used for the Chancellor Palpatine minifigure, but in a tan color (p.184). [The exact same gray piece is only used for one other minifigure, Madam Hooch in LEGO Harry Potter.]

Dooku's unique torso is printed with a brown belt and an ornate cape chain clasp

Dooku's special curved lightsaber hilt also comes with the classic Count Dooku minifigure (p.27)

Pilot Droid

COUNT DOOKU'S CHAUFFEUR

Count Dooku's personal pilot droid is the only one of his kind in LEGO Star Wars, but he is entirely made up of LEGO pieces seen on other minifigures. His body is made from battle droid parts, and his head is seen on skeletons in other LEGO themes, including Fantasy Era. The FA-4 model droid exclusively pilots Count Dooku's Solar Sailer (set 7752).

Leg head

The pilot droid's head can be found on many other minifigures, but it has never before been used as a head piece—it mostly functions as a leg piece on LEGO skeletons.

General Grievous (p. 40) has these same white mechanical arms, but his minifigure has four of them!

Plo Koon

JEDI PILOT

Plo Koon is a Kel Dor from the planet Dorin. He is a Jedi Master during the Clone Wars and a highly skilled pilot. His minifigure has a unique torso showing his Jedi robes and a unique head piece that displays both his Kel Dor origins and the antiox mask he wears so he can breathe when not on Dorin.

Blade change

Plo Koon made his debut in 2008 in the Republic Gunship (set 7676). The set's box artwork originally showed Plo Koon with a green lightsaber, but this was changed to blue before its final release.

In this 2008 set, the Republic's clone army has boarded a huge gunship to take on the Separatists in the harshest battlefields. Plo Koon rides a small speeder bike that can be deployed from the back of the heavily armored gunship.

Dark orange and dark bluish-gray rubber head-mold

Plo Koon wears a fanged antiox breathing mask and he is rarely seen without his protective goggles

Plo Koon's Jedi Starfighter (set 8093)

R7-F5 sits in front of Plo Koon on his starfighter. They are part of a task force on a mission to find a Separatist superweapon. He keeps an eye on Plo's lightsaber in its holder on the side of the ship.

Astromech droid R7-F5 co-pilots Plo Koon's Jedi Starfighter (set 8093) during the Clone Wars. The leg design of this exclusive LEGO minifigure means he can rotate to provide extra navigation assistance to Plo Koon during battle. He is the only brown astromech droid minifigure.

 BROWN ASTROMECH DROID

General Grievous's cyborg minifigure has been updated for a 2010 LEGO Clone Wars appearance. His four-armed minifigure is now built entirely from exclusive pieces! Grievous is still a vicious villain with an untempered hatred of the Jedi and a ghastly lightsaber collection, but his menacing minifigure is now one-of-a-kind.

Grievous's rotting red and yellow eyes are printed on his head piece. The classic Grievous minifigure has no face printing (p.40)

Grievous's four arms have hinged joints so they can be positioned in many ways

Grievous collects the lightsabers of his Jedi victims

Not a droid
Grievous hates being called a droid. He is a cyborg: part flesh, part metal. Grievous's classic minifigure (p.40) is built from some droid parts, but his Clone Wars minifigure is completely unique—something Grievous would probably approve of.

Clone Commander Cody leads a battalion of clone troopers and reports to Jedi General Obi-Wan Kenobi. His minifigure wears clone trooper armor that has been modified to reflect Cody's unit and his rank as commander. He has appeared in two LEGO sets since 2008, in which he fights bravely during the Clone Wars.

Armor additions

Cody's minifigure comes with a gray pauldron that fits round his neck and a kama leg armor that clips under his torso. These extra pieces of armor designate Cody's rank as commander.

Orange markings denote Cody's affiliation with the 212nd Attack Battalion

Cody has been trained as an ARC trooper, so he is familiar with a variety of weapons

Commander Cody

OBI-WAN'S CLONE COMMANDER

Commander Fox makes only one appearance in the LEGO Star Wars galaxy in Separatist Spider Droid (set 7681) in 2008. He is well armed and armored for this battle against the huge, spindly Separatist spider droid. His minifigure has a unique red-patterned torso and helmet.

CLONE TROOPER CAPTAIN

Captain Rex is a clone captain who serves under General Anakin Skywalker in the Battle for Geonosis (set 7869). He is featured in two LEGO sets, also appearing in 2008's AT-TE Walker (set 7675). He is not a typical clone underneath his helmet, as he has a unique LEGO head piece. Rex is heavily armored and carries two blasters making him particularly bold in battle.

As well as this helmet with blue battle honors, Rex also has a clone trooper visor

Rangefinder
Captain Rex's minifigure is almost exactly the same in the two sets he comes in. The only difference is that he wears a dark bluish-gray rangefinder on his helmet in the 2011 set Battle for Geonosis (set 7869).

Hondo is the gunner on board the pirate tank in this set. The tank is equipped with flick-fire missiles and a huge blaster cannon. Hondo and his gang of pirates are on a mission to kidnap Obi-Wan—the Jedi Master will fetch a good ransom!

Black bandana is also worn by the Weequay bounty hunter Shahan Alaia (p.183)

Hondo Ohnaka is the fearsome leader of a gang of Weequay pirates. His minifigure wears mismatched clothes, a black bandana, and green-eyed goggles —items he has scavenged on his many journeys. Hondo only appears in one LEGO set, but he and his pilfering gang are always plotting new ways to make a quick buck.

Shoulder epaulets show all the other pirates who's in charge

Epaulet

The LEGO epaulet shoulder piece is worn by several minifigures across other LEGO themes, including pirates and soldiers. In LEGO Star Wars, however, only two minifigures wear epaulets, Hondo and Embo (p.193).

Torso is printed with an elaborate jacket, which Hondo wears over a ragged white shirt. Hondo thinks the jacket gives him a sense of grandeur

Only two other LEGO Star Wars minifigures have dark red arm pieces: Commander Fox (p.168) and Chancellor Palpatine (p.186)

Hondo Ohnaka
WEEQUAY PIRATE

Turk Falso is a tough Weequay criminal. His minifigure is second-in-command in Hondo Ohnaka's pirate gang, and he wears clothes suitable for a pirate's life of planet hopping and petty thieving. Turk searches for Jedi minifigures to hold for ransom, but he's also out to double-cross his fellow pirates. Luckily for everyone, this rotten pirate only appears in one set.

EQUIPMENT: Pistols, cutlass
VARIANTS: 1

Pirate ponytail

Turk's black ponytail is printed on the back of his head—and continues down the back of his torso.

Unique head piece is printed with Turk's leathery Weequay face

Turk's headband wraps all the way round the head piece and ties up at the back

Turk is the only minifigure in the LEGO Star Wars theme with dark green arms

Unique torso is printed on both sides with Turk's tattered clothing and weapon harness

Turk carries a pair of ancient pistols. The same LEGO pistols are used for the 2007 destroyer droid (p.36)

Man of weapons

Turk wields many weapons in his crime-filled life. He uses this dark bluish-gray cutlass to threaten Jedi hostages.

Turk Falso
 DANGEROUS PIRATE

Aayla prefers using her lightsaber for defense rather than attack

Unique head top clips onto Aayla's standard LEGO head to attach her brown helmet and blue Twi'lek tentacles

Twi'lek skin can be almost any color, but Aayla's blue skin tone is distinctive even among Twi'leks

Aayla's unique torso is printed with her Jedi costume: a cropped brown top with just one sleeve

Standard LEGO lightsaber hilt

Reverse Twi'lek
Aayla's tentacles hang down behind her minifigure's back. The back of her torso is printed with her Jedi clothes.

Aayla Secura is a Twi'lek Jedi Knight. Her blue-skinned minifigure wears a brown Jedi costume and wields a blue lightsaber. Aayla only appears in one LEGO set, Clone Turbo Tank (set 8098), where she, Anakin, and Ahsoka lead their clone troopers against the ruthless bounty hunter Cad Bane.

Cad Bane's Speeder (set 8128)

Cad Bane pilots a sleek speeder when he needs to make a quick getaway. The ship can fit six minifigures, including the pirate Shahan Alama (pictured)—and it has a secret compartment for contraband!

With his wide-brimmed hat, Cad thinks of himself as a space cowboy

Cad Bane is a bounty hunter like no other, so it is fitting that his minifigure is the same. Wearing a unique hat and torso, Cad's blue-skinned minifigure wears a specially designed breathing apparatus and wields the villain's trademark twin blasters. He plots, schemes, and attacks the Jedi in two LEGO sets.

FEARFUL BOUNTY HUNTER

Ruthless bounty hunter Aurra Sing will stop at nothing to get her prize. Her fearless minifigure is dressed in an orange jumpsuit laden with weapons, but wears no armor! Aurra appears in just one set and her minifigure is almost completely built out of unique pieces—only her arms and hands can be found on other minifigures.

Bounty Hunter Assault Gunship (set 7930)

Aurra Sing knows exactly what will fetch the highest ransom. In this set, she's managed to get hold of a LEGO Jedi holocron! Aurra's minifigure stores it in a secret chamber aboard the bounty hunter gunship.

Aurra Sing
RELENTLESS BOUNTY HUNTER

Weapons vest

The back of Aurra's unique torso is printed with her brown vest, in which she stores compact weapons and extra ammo.

Long brown hair is tied up, out of the way

Unique hairstyle

Aurra's long, brown LEGO hair piece was specially designed for her 2011 minifigure. It fits into the stud on top of Aurra's otherwise bald head piece and flows neatly down her back.

Weequay skin

There are three Weequay minifigures: Shahan, Hondo Ohnaka (p.175), and Turk Falso (p.176). They all have faces printed with Weequay skin, but the patterns and colors vary between the three LEGO villains.

Pearl gold arm was taken from a combat droid to replace Shahan's destroyed right arm

Dark red bandana hat piece is unique to Shahan. Hondo Ohnaka wears it in black (p.175)

Shahan Alama was a pirate—until he was kicked out of the gang for being too nasty! Now he is a bounty hunter who works with Cad Bane. His mismatched clothing and bandana point to his former life as a pirate, but his angry temper and willingness to use a blaster on innocent people suggest a more violent minifigure. Fortunately, Shahan wreaks havoc in just one LEGO set.

Shahan's unique head piece is printed with a murderous expression and a Weequay skin pattern, which continues on the back

Protective chestplate worn around the neck

Belt was stolen from a Twi'lek nobleman

Shahan has a blaster—and is not afraid to use it!

Shahan's armor

Shahan's chestplate is printed on the back of his torso, too. Working together with Cad Bane has its risks!

The Senate commando captain leads an elite unit of senate commandos. They are Chancellor Palpatine's personal bodyguards on Coruscant. The captain is an intimidating minifigure in head-to-toe blue and white armor. He appears in just one LEGO set, although his expert commando troops appear in two.

Senate commando

The Senate commando minifigure (above) is identical to the Senate commando captain, but he has no white markings on his helmet and armor, as well as a wider visor.

Not a clone

The Senate commando captain's head piece is the same as that used for the clone trooper (p.152) and other clone minifigures, although Senate commandos and their captain are not actually clones.

SPECIALIST SCOUT

The red-robed minifigure of Chancellor Palpatine looks stately and impressive in his all-red robes, but he has a dark secret. He is the Sith Lord Darth Sidious in disguise! His minifigure appears in one set, and it is the only time Palpatine is depicted as Chancellor, not as his alter ego, Darth Sidious (p.43).

Death Star

Palpatine's hologram of the Death Star is actually a transparent red LEGO head piece with gold markings.

Venator-Class Republic Attack Cruiser (set 8039)

Chancellor Palpatine's Clone Wars flagship is revealed in this set. The front of the ship opens up to reveal Palpatine's office, including his desk and swivel chair.

Palpatine is the only minifigure to have this hair piece in tan

Unique face is printed with sunken eyes and dark wrinkles. They are a sign that the Chancellor is on a path to the dark side

HONORABLE BOUNTY HUNTER

Sugi is an Iridonian Zabrak. Her head piece has small printed horns and precise face tattoos.

The back of Sugi's unique head piece is printed with two more horns and Sugi's purple hair. Her hair is pulled into a neat top knot, so it doesn't get in her minifigure's way during a mission.

Sugi's unique torso is printed with her simple red vest and metal necklace—her most treasured possession.

Sugi's weapon of choice is an EE-3 carbine rifle.

Vibroblade vibrates to make it more efficient than a regular blade.

Plain gray pants give Sugi ease of movement in combat.

Multifunctional

Embo's multi-purpose hat with traditional Kyuzo markings is a 3x3 inverted radar LEGO piece.

The same piece (in black, without special printing) is also used for the Imperial probe droid (p.97).

Embo's metal hat can also be thrown as a weapon or used as a shield

Embo is a Kyuzo bounty hunter with sand-green, scaly skin and yellow eyes. He is part of Sugi's team of bounty hunters on board the Bounty Hunter Assault Gunship (set 7930). His minifigure carries a bowcaster and is made up of many unique pieces, including finely detailed hat, head, torso, and leg pieces.

Straps and armor

The back of Embo's torso contains more printed detail, which continues the pattern of his armor and ammo belt.

Epaulets piece is also worn by Hondo Ohnaka (p.175)

Head-tails

This unique piece was specially made for Shaak Ti. She has two head-tails at the front and one at the back. Shaak is an adult so her head-tails are fully-grown, unlike Ahsoka's (p.150).

The only other LEGO Star Wars minifigure with red hands is the Royal Guard (p.127)

T-6 Jedi Shuttle (set 7931)

Saesee Tiin is exclusive to this LEGO set. He and three other Jedi travel to a distant battlefield on the Jedi shuttle. The shuttle is armed with flick missiles, and the cockpit can become an escape pod—should trouble arise.

Telepathic Jedi Saesee Tiin is a celebrated pilot in the Republic fleet. He is from the planet Iktotch and his minifigure has a unique piece with down-turned horns that fits onto his head piece. Saesee is an integral member of the Jedi Council, as well as a brave soldier. He wears his Jedi robes and wields his lightsaber with pride.

Saesee's telepathic skills help during a lightsaber duel.

Saesee's skin is very tough—able to withstand the strong winds of his home planet.

Saesee's serious face can make him look quite intimidating sometimes!

Utility belt is attached to the parachute on the pilot's back

Flight mask

The V-wing pilot wears the same flight mask head piece as the clone pilot—but in black. Printed silver goggles cover his eyes.

Emergency!

A parachute and oxygen tank are printed on the back of the V-wing pilot's torso, so he is prepared for any emergency.

SET: 7915 Imperial V-Wing Starfighter
 YEAR: 2011
 PIECES: 4
 EQUIPMENT: Blaster
 VARIANTS: 1

Battle-damaged Darth Vader appears in one LEGO set from 2008. Other than his damaged and normal helmets, every part of his minifigure is unique to this version. His torso and face have extensive battle damage printed on them.

Repurposed
Battle-damaged Darth Vader's helmet piece is also used as a scuba diving mask or underwater visor in other LEGO themes, including Aquasharks and Hydronauts.

Darth Vader

SITH LORD

Head piece shows Vader's badly damaged face

Helmet was damaged during a fight with Galen Marek and Juno Eclipse

Darth Vader's metal suit has been ripped and broken in battle

Following a difficult battle, wires hang out of Darth Vader's torso

Red lightsaber with light bluish-gray hilt

DATA FILE
SET: 7672 Rogue Shadow
YEAR: 2008
PIECES: 4
EQUIPMENT: Lightsaber
VARIANTS: 1

This is the only Star Wars minifigure with one black leg and one white leg

Rogue Shadow (set 7672)

Galen Marek is mysteriously named only as "Vader's Apprentice" on the packaging for this 2008 set.

Galen Marek is Darth Vader's secret apprentice, codename Starkiller. His real name has only been revealed to some and his minifigure is elusive, appearing in just one 2008 set. He cuts an untidy figure with his unique torso that is printed with his battle-damaged training gear.

Standard black LEGO hair piece

Tan head piece with worried expression is also used for the frowning Rebel commando (p.140)

Same lightsaber piece as Darth Vader's from the same set (opposite)

There are blood stains on the front of Galen's ripped shirt and he has different colored arms to represent a sleeve having been torn off in battle with Darth Vader

All in a name
Galen Marek is named as "Vader's Apprentice" on the LEGO box because the video game Star Wars: The Force Unleashed had not yet been released and the LEGO Group didn't want to give too much away!

DATA FILE

SET: 7672 Rogue Shadow
YEAR: 2008
PIECES: 4
EQUIPMENT: Lightsaber
VARIANTS: 1

Standard black legs and hip piece have been used for many LEGO minifigures

Galen Marek
STARKILLER

Juno Eclipse is a high-ranking Imperial Officer who works closely with Darth Vader and his secret apprentice on board the Rogue Shadow (set 7672). Her LEGO minifigure is distinctive, with unique torso and head pieces and interchangeable cap and hair for when she is piloting or on land.

Rogue Shadow (set 7672)

Juno Eclipse is the pilot of Rogue Shadow, which transports Darth Vader's apprentice across the LEGO Star Wars galaxy. It is a cumbersome ship to pilot, but Juno is a highly decorated pilot in the Imperial Navy and is more than capable.

Tan hair piece has a ponytail at the back

DATA FILE

SET: 7672 Rogue Shadow

YEAR: 2008

PIECES: 5

EQUIPMENT: Cap

VARIANTS: 1

Unique LEGO head is printed with peach lips and bangs so they can be seen when she is wearing her black cap

Code cylinders allow high-ranking officers access to high-security areas

Printed feminine curves, a unique red-and-yellow rank insignia, and a new belt design makes Juno's uniform differ from the Death Star guard and Imperial pilot (pp.125-126)

Juno Eclipse
IMPERIAL PILOT

Kepi cap

As well as her ponytail head piece, Juno comes with a standard LEGO kepi cap in this set.

Girl power

Although there are lots of female minifigures in the LEGO Star Wars galaxy, Juno Eclipse is the only female Imperial minifigure to make an appearance.

TIE Crawler (set 7664)

This is the first LEGO set to feature the shadow trooper. The 2007 set includes two shadow troopers, but only one can fit in the crawler's cockpit at any time. It is used for ground combat, so the other trooper can use his blaster to supplement the crawler's missiles.

The shadow trooper, also known as a Black Hole trooper, menaces in two LEGO sets. He made his debut in 2007 in the TIE Crawler (set 7664). Never before seen in the Star Wars movies, this shady minifigure's black head and torso pieces are not found on any other minifigure, and his mysterious name adds to his dark reputation.

Name game

In Imperial Dropship (set 7667), the shadow trooper is mistakenly named "Imperial Pilot" on the set box. In the Star Wars galaxy, shadow troopers have sophisticated stealth armor.

Breathing apparatus adapts to different atmospheres

The shadow trooper has a plain black head underneath his black and blue helmet

Shadow trooper armor is similar to the stormtrooper minifigure's (p.62), except it is black instead of white

Blaster gun for ground combat
